Bulganin Note Lists Certain Peace Ideas Democrats Would Talk Policy During Campaign

Middle East Issues May Be Aired Morse Says Dulles Brings on Debate

Washington, Jan. 25 (AP)—A number of Senate Democrats signalled unwillingness today to label specific foreign policy issues out of bounds for political campaign discussion.

Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said there must be room for "constructive criticism" of Eisenhower administration actions. He added both parties are in basic agreement on the objective of preserving peace.

SECRETARY of State Dulles told a new conference yesterday he has talked to Democratic leaders about the possibility of keeping one or two foreign problems out of campaign debate. He said constructive criticism is appropriate, but didn't define what is constructive. Nor did he name the issues he had in mind.

One of the issues, it is understood, is American policy toward Israel and the Arab states in the tense Middle East.

Sen. Morse (D-Ore.), a foreign relations committeeman, said Congress is going to examine thoroughly Dulles' "atomic-rattling foreign policy."

"I KNOW OF NO coalition of Democrats or Republicans who can keep it out of political debate because Mr. Dulles and his political henchmen have already thrown it into the debate," Morse declared.

"So long as he proposes to lead the American people to the precipice of war as a deterrent to war, it is the duty of Congress to examine and publicly debate his policies."

Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.) said in a separate interview Dulles "talks about bipartisanship but all his actions are partisan," and he added:

"DULLES HIMSELF jumped that fence in the 1952 campaign. The Democrats have proved in the last three years they are about as non-partisan as they can be but we haven't had equal treatment from the administration."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said if Dulles wants to "set a good example" he can "apologize for the Republican platform plank in 1952" and for statements in a recent Life magazine article.

Dulles has been criticized by Democrats for statements attributed to him in the article that the ability to go to the verge of war without involvement is a "necessary art" of diplomacy.

George, one of those consulted by Dulles on the campaign question, agreed that "purely partisan" criticism could be harmful. But he said he regards most recent foreign policy debate in the (Continued on Page 6, Col. 7)

Idlewild Airport Disgrace to U.S., Wagner Declares

New York, Jan. 25 (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner says Idlewild Airport, operated by the Port of New York Authority, is "a disgrace to New York and a disgrace to the United States."

Addressing a meeting of the New York Young Democratic Club last night, the mayor also said New York city has had "a bad experience" in turning its airports over to the New York state-New Jersey agency.

"They made big promises about what money they would spend to improve the airports, but very little has been spent," he added.

Wagner said that if the city gave the Port Authority control of the municipal pier—as suggested by authority officials—"there'd be a great deal of concern as to whether they would improve those on our side or those in New Jersey."

The mayor said the authority, whose members are appointed by the governors of the two states, has shown little responsibility to elected bodies.

At yesterday's City Council meeting, Councilman Earl Brown, Manhattan Democrat, introduced a resolution urging the mayor not to agree to give pier control to the Port Authority. The resolution was referred to a committee.

County Thruway Restaurants Will Open in Spring

Class A restaurants under construction at Ruby and Malden on the New York State Thruway will be operating in the spring and two B-type facilities in the county will open by late spring or early summer, it was learned today.

The A-type restaurant at Malden might open in late February and the other a few weeks later, a state official said. The

Plans on Saturday Labor Rally Are To Be Announced

Plans for the labor rally to be held at Kingston Municipal Auditorium on Saturday, Jan. 28, at 2 p. m. were the chief topic of discussion last evening at Fallsburg where the Ulster and Sullivan Building Trades Council met in regular session.

Efforts to reach an official of the Building Trades Council today failed but Thomas Mitchell, business agent for Electricians Local 645, said the plans for the rally was the chief topic of discussion.

The rally Saturday has been called to discuss and protest the use of non-union labor at the $60 million project which has been planned for the Flatbush area.

All of the building trades affiliated with the Ulster-Sullivan Council were represented at the meeting last evening and participated in the discussion of strategy for the rally. It is expected there will be international representatives from several member unions of the council present at the rally. The program for mass meeting will be announced as soon as details have been completed, Mr. Mitchell said.

"DULLES HIMSELF jumped that fence in the 1952 campaign. The Democrats have proved in the last three years they are about as non-partisan as they can be but we haven't had equal treatment from the administration."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said if Dulles wants to "set a good example" he can "apologize for the Republican platform plank in 1952" and for statements in a recent Life magazine article.

More Low-Cost Housing Urged to Help Market

Chicago, Jan. 25 (AP)—Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.) called upon home builders today to broaden the housing market by building more low cost housing.

"In 1954," Sparkman said in a prepared address, "about half the new starts were under $12,000; in 1955, only 35 per cent."

The senator, who is chairman of the Senate subcommittee on housing, told the National Assn. of Home Builders' convention that "this trend perturbs me."

"First, it means that fewer homes are being built for middle and lower income families. Second, it means that some of you may be pricing yourselves out of the market."

The senator said he has felt

"for some time that the housing industry could build and the economy could absorb a minimum of 1½ million new starts each year," but to achieve it we must tap a market that has not yet been reached."

The association has estimated that 1,320,000 homes were built in 1955 and predicts 1,000,000 will be added to that figure in 1956. Sparkman, who was the Democratic Party's vice presidential nominee in 1952, said the "light money market" which "has been one of your primary difficulties over the past six months may continue well into 1956."

He declared the mortgage market is "unusually sensitive" (Continued on Page 6, Col. 8)

B-type restaurants are being built in the Modena and Plattekill areas.

The Class A restaurant at Malden will serve north-bound traffic and that at Ruby is on the south-bound lane. The state has provided for a park and picnic area also in the Ruby area.

An Albany report by Associated Press today said that the thruway authority will build 13 more rest and picnic areas along the expressway, and indicated that most of them would be ready for summer traffic.

THE REST AREAS will be spaced between the 25 service areas which include gasoline stations and dining facilities.

The A-type restaurants consist of a gas station, snack bar, gift shop, lunch room and dining room. A B-type restaurant will operate along the south-bound lane in the Modena area, and one along the other lane will operate in the Plattekill area.

The B-type consists of a gas station, snack bar, gift shop and lunch room.

THE SERVICE areas and picnic spots will provide 42 rest points along the 427-mile expressway. Regulations now prohibit stops along the road's shoulders except for repairs.

Three firms will operate the restaurants: Hot Shoppes, Inc., from New York to Albany; Union News Co., from Albany to Syracuse; and Restaurant Associates, Inc., from Syracuse to Buffalo.

SEVEN of the service areas along the route will have C-type restaurants, with just a service station and snack bar, and three others will have gas-station service only.

Sen. Thomas C. Desmond, Newburgh Republican, launched a campaign last year to win construction of more picnic areas along the thruway. He contended that the commercial dining facilities were too expensive for many motorists.

A bill introduced by Desmond to force the thruway to build more rest areas never got out of committee.

The authority said the new rest areas, like the present three, would be established in "pleasant scenic locations with adequate shade trees." Each will be equipped with picnic tables.

John N. Almeter, 22, of York-shire, N. Y., who was held on the two charges, was fined $50 on the drunken driving count and $10 for speeding, and his license was revoked by City Judge Raymond J. Mino today.

Police noted the arrest at 3:24 a. m. today, and indicated that Almeter was travelling at 60 miles an hour on Broadway. He was arrested by officers Joseph Kyivan and Carlo Perry.

Two patrol cars tailed John Edward Berlanga, 22, of Box 81, Tillsion on a high-speed chase before he was nabbed on a speeding charge on Wilbur avenue, a short time before the other arrest.

Berlanga was chased out Route 32 and back over Route 213 to a point on Wilbur avenue near Greenkill avenue. He was arrested by Officers George Dohnken and Gilbert Gray. Officers Kyivan and Perry assisted in the chase.

City Judge Mino fined Berlanga $50 later today.

John T. Fisher, 33, of 223 Catherine street, who was arrested at 11:10 p. m. yesterday on East Strand by Officers Dohnken and Gray on a speeding charge, was fined $25 in city court.

Ike Reveals Family Not Opposed To New Term; Praises Nixon Work

Washington, Jan. 25 (AP)—President Eisenhower, still not saying how he feels about seeking a second term, spiced a discussion of the issue today with warm praise of Vice President Nixon and a frown at mixing politics and the Supreme Court. His remarks about the court were in response to a question about a possible "draft" of Chief Justice Warren for the GOP nomination.

IN A NEWS conference exchange, Eisenhower also said no member of his family is opposed to his running again, and that he plans a full-scale medical check earlier than the mid-February date mentioned in the past.

Eisenhower said he was arranging for the earlier check up because he is planning a little trip to the south. He didn't elaborate on that.

In somewhat jocular mood, the President said he will not dilly-dally over the second term question, and when he makes a decision he probably will announce it in as dramatic a fashion as he can.

ANOTHER POLITICAL question was whether, if he decides against running again, he would take an active part in picking a potential successor or "on the other hand," would favor a wide open party convention.

With a smile, Eisenhower said he thought he ought first to make up his mind about his own future before tackling that one.

As for whether he will announce before or after the new physical whether he will bid for another four years in the White House, Eisenhower laughed heartily and replied that he couldn't say what his impulses might be.

MUCH OF the questioning at the conference dealt with the second term question.

Eisenhower said in response to one inquiry that no members of his family are against his seeking re-election. There have been published reports that both Mrs. Eisenhower and their son, Maj. John Eisenhower, were opposed to the President's running again.

Eisenhower was asked whether, if he does seek re-election, (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Message Is Left for Ike Study Release Not Made Yet for Public

Senator Wicks Is On Program With Dutchess Judge

More than 300 persons were told at New Paltz Tuesday evening by Frank C. Moore, chairman of the board of trustees of the State University of New York, that "present essential needs" for education call for $250,000.

The former lieutenant governor of the state was principal speaker at a dinner in New Paltz State Teachers College.

OTHER SPEAKERS were State Senator Arthur H. Wicks of Kingston, who stressed the importance of elementary education, and Dutchess county Judge John R. Schwartz, chairman of New Paltz College Council, who called for expansion of the area institution.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO financing of capital improvements is better, Mr. Moore said, than borrowing. Then, quoting the late Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Moore added: "There comes a time when you can't pay, so you don't go."

"For the sake of our youth," Mr. Moore continued, "we have to go ahead with providing higher educational opportunities."

He referred to a recommendation by the university board that a 250-million-dollar bond issue be placed before the electorate, and said 190 million dollars of the total would be for projects (Continued on Page 12, Col. 5)

Two Plead Guilty Of Defrauding Kingston Church

New York, Jan. 25—Two men pleaded guilty in New York Federal Court Tuesday to charges of having defrauded St. Joseph's Church, of Kingston, and other churches across the country, through the sale of vigil light tumbler.

The defendants, Murray Kaye of New Hyde Park, N. Y., and Philip Rothstein of Brooklyn, were continued in bail by Judge Irving R. Kaufman, pending sentence Feb. 15. They face maximum sentences of five years and $1,000 fines each.

The pair, operators of the Star Glass Corp., were charged, in a 32-count indictment, with having shipped unordered tumbler that cost 43 cents a dozen and then billing churches at $3.75 a dozen as if the goods had been sent on order. The bills were marked to appear as if someone connected with the church had already approved the purchases.

The scheme allegedly operated from January, 1952, until last May, when the indictment was returned against them. According to Assistant U. S. Attorney Thomas M. Debevoise, the operation grossed over $12,000 in April, 1954, alone.

The fraud against St. Joseph's Church was allegedly perpetrated by the two through misrepresentations to Msgr. Stephen P. Connelly, of the church.

"Did you deliver the message?" a newsman asked. "Yes," Zarubin replied. He was asked whether it was (Continued on Page 6, Col. 5)

Five Gangland Slayings Might Tie to Brink Case

Boston, Jan. 25 (AP)—Authorities say five gangland slayings, an attempted murder and a suicide may have some connection with the $1,218,211 Brink's robbery on Jan. 17, 1950.

The officials said last night they believe the five were killed because they "knew too much" about the biggest cash robbery in U. S. history.

They listed them as: John Carlson, a Boston bookie who disappeared in the summer of 1954 and hasn't been seen since.

Carlton O'Brien, 49, of West Warwick, R. I., once named by a Rhode Island state prison inmate as the "brains" in the Brink's robbery. He was shot to death outside his home on May 17, 1952.

Morris (Whitey) Hurwitz, 39, of Brookline, salesman, gambler and former boxer, who was shot to death outside his home on Jan. 6, 1953.

Guy "Kid Morgan" Parella, of Boston, last seen June 5, 1953, when he left a Boston cafe and got into a car with three men.

James Bratsos, also of Boston, last seen on March 21, 1954.

Listed as the suicide was George O'Brien of Quincy, whose body was found in Franklin Park in 1954, a few days after he was acquitted of the $681,000 Danvers armored truck robbery.

The attempted slaying was that of Joseph "Specs" O'Keefe, who pleaded guilty to Brink's robbery and turned "songbird" in disclosing the names of 10 others he said participated in the robbery with him.

Several shots from a sub-machine gun were fired at O'Keefe outside a Dorchester housing project in the early morning hours of a June day of 1954.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE
New York. (AP)—Some things a columnist might never know if he didn't read his mail:
That there are more than 1,500,000 people named Smith in the United States, and the number increases by about 110 every day. (This doesn't include the Smyths, Smythes, Schmitts, Schmidts or Psmiths).
That if you pick up a handful of good soil you hold more living organisms in your fist than there are human beings in the entire world.
That AMERICAN industry in the next ten years will spend 56.5 billion dollars on research and development, more than 1 1/2 times the total expended since the birth of the nation.
That in 1941 only about a million American families owned two or more cars, but now 4.5 million do. (But do they fit in a 1941 garage?)
That in autopsies performed on 193 cats killed in highway accidents not one was found to have consumed a wild bird. The stomach contents consisted mostly of mice, young rabbits and rats.
That perhaps the most crime-free community in the world is Karakelle, a Turkish village with a population of 450. In the last 99 years not one of its inhabitants has been arrested.
That YOU MAY not be able to teach an old dog new tricks, but Joseph W. Lippincott, a Philadelphia bird authority, found old crows learned to speak more readily than younger ones.
That the coffee percolator was invented by James H. Nason of Franklin, Mass., in 1865.
That 50 per cent of the nation's annual 1,200 to 1,400 poison deaths in the home (aside from fatal gases) occur among children 4 years of age or less.
That 60 PER CENT of the successful parlor games now popular in America were invented by amateurs (but please don't send your ideas for new games to me; all I play is "Post-office").
That physicians for Cesare Borgia, Italian Renaissance prince, treated him for malaria by sewing him up for two days inside the carcass of a diseased mule. He survived, too, and emerged feeling better. Or so the doctors claimed.
That it is safer to drive in the city than in the country. Of the 36,000 fatal car accidents in 1954, some 27,000 occurred in rural areas, only 9,000 in urban centers.
That WOMAN'S place is now in the business office as well as in the home. In 1890 men clerical workers outnumbered women eight to one, but today women hold a three-to-one edge.
That a "whinnyyburger" is a hamburger made from horse-meat.
That a survey made during a heat wave in Chicago showed stenographic errors increased 1,000 per cent when the office temperature rose from 78 to 96 degrees.
That a well-dressed man permits his shirt cuff to extend exactly one-half inch beyond his coat sleeve. (Our motto: "Every day another lifelong problem solved.")
That FOUR of 10 American men smoke cigars, either regularly or occasionally.
That the half billion common colds caught in America each year cost five billion dollars—an average of $10 a cold—in lost wages, lost production and medical expenses. (Can virus "X" match this record?)
That some scientists believe the world's climate is getting warmer because of a gradual increase of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere. (Now, if everybody will just start breathing faster, maybe we can get rid of this cold wave.)
That TV Actress Betty White of "Life With Elizabeth" says, "Men are bigger dreamers, better storytellers and finer cooks than women." Well, thank you, Betty.

Barbers Protest
Beckley, W. Va. (AP)—Local No. 975 of the Journeymen Barbers Assn. has gone on the war path against back porch barbering in two counties. The local refers to other than full-time barbers in shops, who are handy with scissors and shears and who will cut hair on home calls in the coal fields. Families with eight or nine children can get their locks shorn at an economy-sized bargain rate and keep a bargaining man busy for a good part of a day. The journeymen protest that they must take physical examinations, submit to blood tests, obtain state and local licenses and maintain shops, while the back porchers aren't so inconvenienced.

Two Appointments To Annapolis Made

Washington, Jan. 25 (AP)—Sen. Ives (R.-N.Y.) has announced his two appointments to the U.S. Naval Academy in the class entering in July.

Ten nominations were also announced for the Air Force Academy in Colorado. The ten must compete further before winning an appointment.

Appointed to the Naval Academy were James John Henry Jr., Brooklyn, and Kenneth Bryan Corman, Hollis.

Among the Air Academy nominees were Leland H. Ginn, Sackets Harbor; Angelo C. Tarranto, Norwich; and Bruce S. Nevins, Olean.

Roundup of Albany Bills

Albany, Jan. 25 (AP)—The chairman of the Legislature's motor vehicle committees today whipped up a batch of new legal poison designed to wipe out the highway "litterbug."

Sen. William S. Hulst of Port Washington and Assemblyman Lawrence Van Cleef of Seneca Falls introduced bills proposing $25 fines for persons who throw "refuse, rubbish, litter or other substances" on the roads.

THE REPUBLICAN lawmakers pointed out that a section of the penal law makes it a misdemeanor to "willfully deposit" snow, garbage or rubbish on the highways. Conviction may mean fines ranging from $5 to $50.

Hulst and Van Cleef said enforcement of that law had been "lax" because it was difficult to prove willful action and because of the $50 maximum penalty.

They proposed repealing the section and substituting a flat $25 penalty for persons who littered highways willfully or not.

A Democratic assemblyman from the Bronx, Walter H. Gladwin, called upon the Legislature to memorialize Congress to withhold federal aid for education from any state that refused to comply with the U. S. Supreme Court order on school desegregation.

CONGRESS has not voted yet on a school-aid bill. Gladwin, said in his resolution it would be a "crime and disgrace" to tax Negroes living in New York state in order to support segregated schools in the south.

Members of the joint legislative committee on town and village laws introduced a dozen bills yesterday to remedy inequities between village and town governments.

The measures would clear the way for joint village-town ventures, allow villages to perform town functions on a contract basis and define the financial responsibility for town activities in which villages did not share.

A COMMITTEE spokesman said the bills represented "a partial report" based on findings from public hearings held throughout the state. Other measures are being drafted.

Assemblyman Stuart F. Hawley, Republican from Lake

George, offered a bill that would prohibit water skiing at night. The measure also would require boats towing water skiers to carry an attendant to look after the skiers.

OTHER bills would: Provide for indemnity payments to dairy farmers for cattle found to be infected with Brucellosis.

Require all trucks weighing more than a ton to be equipped with outside, rear-view mirrors. Repeal the law that requires taverns to serve meals in order to qualify for selling alcoholic beverages for on-premises consumption.

Sawyer Forensic Group Slates Busy Schedule

Saugerties, Jan. 24—Mid-term examinations this week call a brief halt to Sawyer Forensic activities before the busy month of February opens the spring season. On Jan. 30, Hudson ventures to Catskill and on Feb. 6 invades Saugerties to continue the "supper series." At the present Catskill leads by one victory a result of their defeating the local debaters this past week. The novice debaters fared better against the invaders by earning a split, one win—one lost.

At Poughkeepsie Rosemary Martin and Joan Cotich gathered two tourney firsts in the six event speech festival. Other Sawyer participants tallied 68 points in earning high placements. On Feb. 4, James Erceg, Joan Cotich, James Sandner and Helen Swart travel to New York University to participate in the "Hall of Fame" Invitational Tri-State Tournament. Entries from 56 New York, Connecticut and New Jersey schools will vie for honors. On Feb. 18 the Spring Mid-Hudson Congress convenes at Arlington.

Woodworking Class Resumes on Tuesday

Saugerties, Jan. 24—The woodworking and fix-it class of the Saugerties Adult Education program has resumed regular meetings on Tuesday at 7 p. m. in the high school shop at the rear of Saugerties Central High School. THE BUDGET ACCOMPLISHMENT

Americans familiar with President Eisenhower's program for the coming year know it calls for heavier defense and foreign aid outlays, and new attention to the pressing domestic need for more schools, housing and highways.

No one, therefore, would expect the President's latest budget to be an economy budget, and it is not. Projected expenditures for the fiscal year starting next July are about $1.6 billion above the expected totals for the present year.

Yet Mr. Eisenhower looks forward to a budget that will be balanced for the first time since 1951. And he foresees continued fiscal stability in the period beyond this budget.

Since no tax increases are called for, how is the administration expecting to achieve a balanced budget at the moment it is stepping up expenditures?

Fundamentally it is counting on the continued rise in business levels to boost federal revenues some $400 million beyond anticipated outlays of $65.9 billion for fiscal 1957.

This is a not unreasonable hope, inasmuch as Mr. Eisenhower projected a deficit for the current year and now finds that the boom has lifted federal intake to the point where a $200 million surplus may show by June 30.

It is even possible that revenues may rise to a point where the President will feel justified in asking Congress to enact a modest tax cut in this calendar year.

If this anticipated result does indeed follow, then considerable credit will flow to Mr. Eisenhower. Some will say "sound fiscal policy" brought a halt to deficit government. Others will stress the atmosphere of confidence engendered by the President, for the congenial economic climate he has fostered has undoubtedly played a substantial role in promoting the boom.

One might say that in this budget Mr. Eisenhower has turned things about. As the country's economic enterprisers have reposed their confidence in him, he is now putting his faith in them.

He is in effect telling them he believes they will lift the American economy to levels where it can meet many pressing human needs at home while simultaneously protecting us and our friends abroad from the perils of an aggressive communism.

TO BE WELCOMED

The fear that automation will create widespread unemployment flies in the face of history. Every improvement in production methods, along with every invention of importance, has ultimately produced not fewer jobs, but more and better jobs.

The automobile destroyed the horse and buggy businesses—but an almost infinite increase in employment and opportunity followed. More recently, prophets of gloom forecast that dial telephones would bring a catastrophic degree of unemployment among operators. Yet there are 70 per cent more phone operators than there were 10 years ago.

Automation is to be welcomed, not feared.

A father has reason to be proud of his ability to stand on his own two feet—especially when he undertakes to teach his youngster to skate.

MORE MEAT ON THE TABLE

We Americans ate mighty well last year—and it looks as if we may eat even better during 1956. That is the substance of a statement made a short time ago by the head of the American Meat Institute.

In 1955, about 26,800,000,000 pounds of meat were produced—a remarkable achievement. Even more remarkable, in this expert's view, is the fact that the consuming public ate the tremendous production and thus cleared the way for the 27,200,000,000 pounds predicted for the current year. There are no heavy stocks of meat hanging over the market, as there are with so many other farm products.

'These Days'

A BIRTHDAY

As one lies here and thinks of men and events and the courses and tides of history, it comes to me that on Thursday, General Douglas MacArthur will celebrate his 76th birthday. I hope I have the date right but here I may not look anything up or telephone. For only one hour each day I am excused from being a vegetable and thus far, there have been no untoward results. During that one free hour, I write these little essays just as I am sure a fiddler would want to run over the strings of a violin. We are all creatures of habit and for nearly 40 years now, I have informed the world on this and that and the habit is too strong to break.

To return to Douglas MacArthur, his birthday ought to be marked in some manner for this is an extraordinarily truthful man in an era of mediocre time-servers. His is a philosophic outlook on the history and future of his country rather than an over-specialized emphasis on personal self-preservation. He is acknowledged in his own occupation to be our greatest general, perhaps the most competent military mind we have produced since Robert E. Lee; so he was kicked out by military lackies, most of whose names we have already forgotten. They may have gotten rid of MacArthur from the Army but not from his place in history.

And as he remains alive, we must ask him about General Matthew Ridgway's disclosure that a report to the nation was faked and who was responsible for faking it. For MacArthur suffered much of the moral irresponsibility of the Pentagon where men become so engrossed in detail that they never think of the consequences of what they do. I met General Ridgway at a dinner shortly after he returned from Korea and his conversation was all in one direction, that MacArthur had been right and the politicians in Washington all wrong and he spoke privately of how the lives of our sons were endangered because of arms shortages. Many crimes have been committed in the name of politics, or loyalty to the "commander-in-chief," whatever that may be in American life. But now the honest men are talking up and it is not going to be easy to answer. Nobody can answer Ridgway's charge of lying to the American people.

General Douglas MacArthur, as a military man, could not understand why he was instructed to go into a war to achieve a defeat. There was never a question of insubordination because he led his army to defeat as he had been instructed to do. But how to understand these orders? How to interpret them? How to make them fit a philosophy of war? That he could not do. And so he spoke out and got fired after serving his country from West Point to a commander of a theatre. He was fired like a little boy chased off the block. It was a cheap, an uncouth dismissal. It was like sticking one's tongue out at a great historic monument.

When men speak of morale in the army or clergy, or in schools or anywhere, they really speak of that quality of pride that men have in their work and their associations. The "old tie" may be a phrase for amusement but it represents just this high quality of loyalty to a service that held better than all the rules books ever devised. When General Douglas MacArthur was dismissed summarily, without even a face-saving device, a blow was struck not at him but at the morale of our armed services. A noble overtone of service disappeared. It all became nothing but a job for those who learn how to stand in right, who know just what to say at the right moment, the apple-polishers.

Efficient and competent as they may be, and nobody doubts that, they lack a moral elan and their lack is conveyed down the line to the men. A hero's breed must be heroic and these men who knifed MacArthur to please politicians were not heroes. And where are they today?

And so there he stands, as noble as ever, Douglas MacArthur, from whom has even been withheld a nominal honor, the title, "General of the Armies." On his birthday, I congratulate him that time has proved him a noble figure in a confused era.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.
THE ANXIOUS ADULT

Yesterday we discussed the various factors which cause anxiety in a child and how these same factors carry over into adulthood. Every physician knows that the tendency of anxiety is to intensify any symptoms of physical disease which may be present, an anxiety is something which affects the total individual. It may incapacitate the patient more than any actual disease, and it is part of the doctor's job to determine how much of the patient's distress is due to anxiety and how much to an actual physical condition that exists, if one does.

Anxiety characteristically produces alarming symptoms such as respiratory difficulties, discomfort in the region of the heart, dizziness, perspiration, palpitation of the heart, weakness, disturbances of stomach and intestines, muscular pain and headache. If the patient with these symptoms is carefully questioned, he usually betrays certain fears, fears which may be of wide variety. Many times the appearance of the patient is suggestive. He has a tense, restless, uneasy look. Examination reveals cold, moist hands and feet, dry mouth and lips, a pulse rate and blood pressure which may vary from time to time.

In the early stages of the anxiety state, the patient is tense, restless, irritable, easily tired, and suffers from sleeplessness. He may find his memory faulty, his powers of concentration lessened, and his ability to make decisions weakened. Later when his anxiety deepens, it may concentrate on some organ or system of the body or take the form of depression, hysteria, or the feeling of being compelled to do certain actions or think certain thoughts.

As a rule, patients with anxiety dislike crowds, new and unfamiliar situations, tension, and struggle. Since these things fire them quickly, they prefer to remain in the familiar groove with people—preferably a few or even one person—whom they know well. They show a loss in general effectiveness, impairment in memory, concentration, sleep and appetite. It is important to recognize that anxiety symptoms have a purpose. They serve to control some threat to the personality. Quite often they permit the patient to cut down on his activities, thus keeping him away from places, situations and relationships that arouse anxiety.

It is of the greatest importance that such patients have a complete, careful physical examination when they first come to the physician. Unlike most persons with real organic disease, persons with anxiety states are extremely difficult to convince that their symptoms are not dangerous. They tend to view their distress as a sign of future disaster and to try to reassure them on anything but firm factual grounds will only serve to increase their anxiety and, hence, their symptoms.

sume some 161 pounds of meat per person to continued high employment, high personal income, a growing population, and a high appreciation of meat's food value. These factors remain in effect, and a continued strong demand for meat thus seems assured.

General Ridgway—Retired?

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent
Washington (NEA)—History repeats all over the page in President Eisenhower's letter to New Hampshire Deputy Secretary of State Harry E. Jackson. This is the letter in which the President says he does not feel he should interpose objections to entering his name in the March primary election.

After giving his supporters this build-up for their hopes, the President, in the next breath, knocks them down again by saying that "this cannot be construed as any final decision on my part relative to a candidacy for a second term."

Almost exactly four years ago, Gen. Eisenhower was playing the same game of cat and mouse with public and politicians on whether he was a presidential candidate.

ON JAN. 6, 1952, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. (R-Mass.), announced that he was entering Eisenhower's name in the New Hampshire primary.

The next day, Gen. Eisenhower released a statement from his North Atlantic Treaty Organization headquarters in Paris. It was couched in the same careful both-sides-of-the-question language used in the current letter to Jackson. It said, "yes, no and maybe but perhaps not. Any one could read into it anything he chose."

Many people did just that as they are now doing with the 1956 letter.

"There is no question of the right of American citizens to organize in pursuit of their common convictions," Gen. Eisenhower said in his statement of four years ago. "I realize that Senator Lodge and his associates are exercising this right in an attempt to place before me next July, a duty that would transcend my present responsibility. In the absence, however, of a clear-cut call to political duty, I shall continue to devote my full attention and energies to the performance of the vital task to which I am assigned."

SUBSTITUTE THE FACT that President Eisenhower's chief concern today is his health, whereas his problem four years ago was that he had another job. What you come up with is the 1956 version of the 1952 thought.

He says now, "Freedom to select, nominate and elect a candidate to public office is basic to our American political system. Because I deeply believe that every citizen should have the widest possible choice in expressing his own preference in such matters, I would hope that the accident of my illness and the necessary period for determining the degree of my recovery would not have the effect of interfering with the privilege of every member of our party to express his preference for the presidential candidate of his choice."

Reading or hearing this new statement, people who have thought all along that Ike will be a candidate for a second term are now convinced he will run again. People who have believed he will bow out are now equally sure.

IN 1952, GEN. EISENHOWER kept this guessing game going for another three months. On March 7, 1952, just before the New Hampshire primary, he again refused to say whether he was a candidate. He wrote this evasion to Robert P. Burroughs of Manchester, a former GOP committeeman:

"I have no alternative but to adhere to the spirit and intent of my public announcement of Jan. 7."

Even after the March 11, 1952 New Hampshire primary, which he won, Gen. Eisenhower would say only that "any American who is so honored by so many other Americans should be proud." That didn't say he was a candidate and would run.

President Eisenhower now writes to New Hampshire, "I am deeply gratified that the petitioners have expressed this kind of personal confidence in me." That doesn't make him a candidate or say he's running either.

In 1952 such a statement did not come till April 11.

These transgressions by Soviet Russia and Red China are conspicuous on the records of the last few years. Notwithstanding this, there has recently been a surprising amount of talk in and around the UN headquarters in New York about voting Red China into the Security Council.

This is likely to be the most penetrating question that the principal governments of the world will have to answer if the United Nations is not to impair its effectiveness as a mediator in the days to come.

Israel probably suffered extreme provocations which led to the border raids for which a vote of censure now has been recorded by the United Nations. But there are numerous instances of even more flagrant sins by the Red Chinese in Korea. Here there is a solemn agreement to which the United Nations itself is a party. It specifies exactly what can and cannot be done under the terms of the armistice signed at Panmunjom. Yet American military men report that the Red Chinese have built up air fields and brought jet planes to North Korea in disregard of the prohibitions in the armistice agreement.

The United Nations, which has membership on a supervisory commission in Korea and is supposed to see that the armistice terms are honored, finds itself frustrated again and again as the commission isn't even allowed freedom to inspect in North Korea. Not a word of censure, however, comes from the United Nations itself on these points. The UN evidently feels courageous enough to pick on a struggling nation like Israel, which is surrounded on all sides by hostile neighbors, but loses courage when it comes to condemning the Red Chinese government.

THE SOVIET UNION, moreover, enthusiastically joins in the voting to censure Israel, but the United Nations chooses to forget that the Moscow government confessed early in 1953 at a General Assembly meeting that it had been supplying arms and ammunition to the Red Chinese and North Korean armies.

No cognizance was taken of this disgraceful action by a member of the UN, the charter of which pledges all members to give faithful adherence to the resolutions of the organization. The UN in 1950 formally called on all members to refrain from supplying arms to the forces opposing the UN soldiers in Korea.

UN Censure Is Seen Limited To Small Struggling Nations

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 25—Why does the United Nations jump all over a little country like Israel and refrain from condemning the big fellows—Red China and Soviet Russia?

This is likely to be the most penetrating question that the principal governments of the world will have to answer if the United Nations is not to impair its effectiveness as a mediator in the days to come.

Israel probably suffered extreme provocations which led to the border raids for which a vote of censure now has been recorded by the United Nations. These transgressions by Soviet Russia and Red China are conspicuous on the records of the last few years. Notwithstanding this, there has recently been a surprising amount of talk in and around the UN headquarters in New York about voting Red China into the Security Council.

This is likely to be the most penetrating question that the principal governments of the world will have to answer if the United Nations is not to impair its effectiveness as a mediator in the days to come.

Israel probably suffered extreme provocations which led to the border raids for which a vote of censure now has been recorded by the United Nations. But there are numerous instances of even more flagrant sins by the Red Chinese in Korea. Here there is a solemn agreement to which the United Nations itself is a party. It specifies exactly what can and cannot be done under the terms of the armistice signed at Panmunjom. Yet American military men report that the Red Chinese have built up air fields and brought jet planes to North Korea in disregard of the prohibitions in the armistice agreement.

The United Nations, which has membership on a supervisory commission in Korea and is supposed to see that the armistice terms are honored, finds itself frustrated again and again as the commission isn't even allowed freedom to inspect in North Korea. Not a word of censure, however, comes from the United Nations itself on these points. The UN evidently feels courageous enough to pick on a struggling nation like Israel, which is surrounded on all sides by hostile neighbors, but loses courage when it comes to condemning the Red Chinese government.

THE SOVIET UNION, moreover, enthusiastically joins in the voting to censure Israel, but the United Nations chooses to forget that the Moscow government confessed early in 1953 at a General Assembly meeting that it had been supplying arms and ammunition to the Red Chinese and North Korean armies.

No cognizance was taken of this disgraceful action by a member of the UN, the charter of which pledges all members to give faithful adherence to the resolutions of the organization. The UN in 1950 formally called on all members to refrain from supplying arms to the forces opposing the UN soldiers in Korea.

Mules in the Pink

Orleans, Neb. (AP)—The story goes that three men took the pledge and one left town to take the cure when they saw a pair of pink mules trotting down the street. They needn't have jumped to conclusions because what they saw really was a team of pink mules. When two gray mules worked up a sweat they were covered with red quilts. The color ran and the mules took on a pinkish hue.

The inch originated as the thickness of a man's thumb.

Kingston and surrounding territory seems to be progressing in jet job fashion. There is no telling what tomorrow's local headlines will say but each day seems to be more exciting than the previous day. In March 1923 when the promissive survey of Kingston was made, a questionnaire was sent out to Chamber of Commerce members with the request that each one note his opinion of the outstanding need for Kingston. I do not know how many members they had, nor how many answered this questionnaire but 26 had asked for a new hotel, 25 for additional houses and apartments, 22 for better transportation, 13 had asked for better market for produce of farmers, 10 wanted a public auditorium, 10 thought increased or improved theatres would improve the city. Nine wanted band concerts, eight asked for more playgrounds, six mentioned added facilities for vocational schools, five thought of more support for the library, etc. It so happened that the Governor Clinton Hotel and gardens opened its doors three years later, May 20, 1926. Most of the above wants have been met, I feel, except the poor little Kingston Public Library. It has not moved out its walls one inch, while the hospital, the high school, the Tumor Clinic, the George Washington School have all become a reality during this quarter of a century. What about the library? New York city is full of busy people yet they seem to have time for the famous 5th avenue library which is world famous for its books and collections. Hope in the very near future the Kingston Library will all spread to full strength for the type of city we seem to be growing into.

The Broadway Theatre did not come into existence until around 1927. O. S. Hathaway ran Keneey's on Wall street under lease and on April 27, 1920 bought it. He also ran the famous Old Kingston Opera House and the Auditorium Theatre at the YMCA building. M. L. Reben, during the 1923 survey said, "First class theatre for vaudeville and dramatic plays needed." Ernest R. Acker also asked for "theatre to present legitimate plays." On the library, Supt. of Schools said: "The city appropriates $3,000 annually for support of the city public library under its agreement with Mr. Carnegie. The library cannot be efficiently operated for less than $6,000 annually. Legislation should be secured requiring an appropriation of at least $5,000."

Also during the 1923 Kingston survey Dr. Mark O'Meara said, "a bridge across the Hudson is much needed and could be put through successfully by a Dutchess-Ulster organization formed for that purpose." M. L. Reben also said, "elimination of the Broadway grade crossing and a depot at least as good as Rhinecliff." A. D. Rose said: "Bus terminals where packages may be left without risk of being stolen and some one to see that all packages go out with buses. Uptown terminal packages are left on horse block out in the yard and weather." Charles N. Behrens touched the crying need of Kingston with his remark: "A couple of good factories, employing skilled male labor." It would be interesting to have another such questionnaire now so that folks a quarter of a century hence can read it and see how much of it becomes a reality.

New Esopus Blood Bank Reports Ten Withdrawals

More than 10 persons have drawn blood from the recently-organized town of Esopus blood bank which indicates that residents of the township are beginning to realize the benefits of having a blood bank available when a great need for the service arises.

According to a spokesman of the blood bank committee which operates under the sponsorship of the Town of Esopus Lions Club, requests for blood are being received more frequently since the people are aware that every resident of the township is a participant.

THE COMMITTEE stresses that giving blood is an act of neighborliness. No one knows when the occasion may arise when blood is needed. In the past three weeks there has been an unusual demand for blood and donors are urgently needed now to replenish the diminishing supply said the spokesman.

Those wishing an appointment may contact Miss Mary Wiseman at Kingston Laboratory or Louis A. Goldberg of Port Ewen, chairman of the blood bank committee.

The age limit for donors is up to 55 years. Prospective donors from 18 up to 21 must have parental or guardian consent.

It is estimated that the average family of four eats more than 11 pounds of meat per week.

Chances Bright For Fay Parole

Dannemora, N. Y., Jan. 25 (AP)—Joey Fay, labor racketeer who has served eight years in prison, was reported to have a strong chance of gaining his freedom through a plea today for parole.

Fay went to prison in February, 1948 after losing several appeals.

The 64-year-old former vice president of the Operating Engineers Union was to reappear personally to a three-man parole board in Clinton prison.

Lee B. Mailler, board chairman, declined last night to comment on Fay's chances but an informed source said the board would grant Fay's plea.

Fay, serving a 7½ to 15-year sentence, was turned down a year ago.

He was sentenced in 1945 for extorting $368,000 from contractors.

Message Is . . .

a written message, what was in it and the like. To such inquiries, he kept saying "no, no, no."

THERE ALSO WAS no immediate word from the White House on what the message contained.

One question which got through clearly to Zarubin in the hubbub was: "How did you think the President looked?" He replied: "Very good."

The ambassador left the White House in the black limousine which had delivered him there. He was alone coming and going.

He wore a light gray hat, a dark gray overcoat and carried a tan briefcase.

IT WAS THE FIRST time Zarubin had called for a business session with the President since he came to Washington in September, 1952.

There was speculation in advance that the Bulgarian message meant the Russians were ready to spring some new diplomatic maneuver.

The most commonly held theory was that Bulgarian was making a new approach on disarmament, a subject on which he and Eisenhower exchanged notes last year following the Geneva summit conference.

The exchange followed Eisenhower's proposal for mutual aerial inspection of American and Russian military establishments. The Russians termed his plan unacceptable unless fitted into a broad disarmament program of the kind which they advocate and the United States has rejected.

Flood Victim Found

Stroudsburg, Pa., Jan. 25 (AP)—Two boys trapping muskrats along Brothack creek in East Stroudsburg yesterday discovered the body of a boy who perished in the disastrous floods of last Aug. 18-19 in northeastern Pennsylvania. State police said the body was identified by William Leibfried Sr. of Nanuet, N. Y., as his son, William Jr., 12. Police said the father made the identification as the result of a scar on the boy's right knee and by clothing and other objects. Last night, Dr. Charles Rushmore, Monroe county coroner, tentatively identified the victim as Bruce Thompson, 15, Jersey City, N. J. The boy was reported to have been one of the campers swirled to their death by the torrent at Camp Davis, where nearly 40 persons lost their lives.

The Tyler car was proceeding south on Bayard street and Tyler east on Salem street. No injuries were reported. The Howard car was damaged, according to a report filed by Deputy Sheriff Delbert Sapp.

Red Biography Changes Tune As to Latest FDR Popularity

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY
Moscow, Jan. 25 (AP)—Franklin Delano Roosevelt was a great and popular figure to the Soviet people when the United States gave open-handed material and military aid to Russia during World War 2. You might not think so, though, from reading his biography in the latest volume of the great Soviet Encyclopedia.

It starts out by saying that "Roosevelt was born into a family of big employers and landowners. Roosevelt's fortune considerably increased after his marriage to a distant relative of his, Eleanor Roosevelt. As a result of the marriage of Roosevelt's son, Franklin Delano Roosevelt Jr., to Ethel duPont, close bonds were established between Roosevelt and the duPont family of billionaires..."

AFTER ABOUT 100 words of terse recording of his political career, the Soviet Encyclopedia notes his administration "established diplomatic relations with the USSR" and continues:

"Roosevelt's tenure of office coincided with the depression, which came after the world economic crisis of 1929-33, and with the economic crisis which began in 1937. Becoming President, Roosevelt carried out a number of reforms (so-called 'new course') which was an unsuccessful attempt at overcoming the consequences of the economic crisis, to consolidate the capitalist system by strengthening state capitalism. These aims in particular served in Roosevelt's carrying out the National Industrial Recovery Act. Roosevelt also carried out legislation on social insurance, the so-called Wagner Act on labor relations and others. Roosevelt's administration also extended subsidies to big monopolies, carried out in their interests the militarization of labor and reinforced war production."

"THE GROWTH of the resistance of the Latin-American peoples to the oppression of American imperialism forced the Roosevelt administration to go over to more flexible methods of policy in relation to Latin American countries (so-called 'Good Neighbor policy')."

"In March, 1941, on Roosevelt's proposal, Congress adopted a law on lending or leasing armaments, ammunition, strategic material, food supplies and other material resources to countries participating in the war against Hitler Germany. When Hitler Germany treacherously attacked the USSR, Roosevelt proposed aid and cooperation to the Soviet Union. He appraised highly the heroic fight of the Soviet people against Fascist Germany and repeatedly stressed that the USSR held down the main forces of the Hitlerites."

"AFTER THE entrance of the U. S. A. in the war, agreements were signed between F. D. Roosevelt and V. M. Molotov in Washington on principles applicable to mutual assistance in conducting war against aggression."

Removal Is Asked Of Symbols From Former Churches

A branch of the Masonic Order is urging that all symbols of religion be removed from former places of worship turned to commercial use.

Informed of the dismal and widespread practice of using these structures, without full removal of markings of religious significance, the Americanism committee of the National Sojourners, Inc., passed a resolution asking for action.

The Sojourners are Masons who have served or are now serving as commissioned officers in all of the U. S. services.

FAILURE to remove religious symbols gives the appearance of desecration, the resolution says, when former houses of worship are turned into supermarkets, movie theatres, repair shops, woodworking plants and other commercial establishments.

The committee calls upon all citizens having control over such properties to make sure about removal of all marks of religion, including church bells, before the property is turned to gainful purposes.

IT WAS STRESSED in the resolution that failure to remove the religious identifications gives the appearance of such desecration found in atheistic, Godless Communist controlled nations.

The committee noted that America's reliance on God can be found on coin inscriptions and in pledges used by the nation. An appeal is made in the resolution, to executive powers directing national church councils of all faiths to move swiftly to erase the injurious impressions now existing and to strive to prevent them in the future.

COPIES of the resolution are being forwarded to the American Legion and other Leagues of Veterans and to many ministerial associations.

All patriotic citizens are urged to cast about in the communities where they live and see if the conditions noted in the resolution are observable.

Judge Stops Leap

Buenos Aires — A 16-year-old girl who tried to jump from a fifth-story courtroom window was foiled by the judge hearing case. Juvenile Judge Hector Sturla was considering her mother's plea that the girl be sent to a mental hospital when she dashed to the window. The judge caught her just as she jumped. She was hospitalized for observation.

'Egypt Fever' Is Gripping Hungary

Vienna, Jan. 25 (AP)—Communist-ruled Hungary is gripped by "Egypt Fever," complains the Budapest press. It seems nearly everybody wants to go to Egypt, perhaps seeing therein a chance of escaping the homeland.

This fever started several weeks ago when the Hungarian government announced it had contracted to build several bridges across the Nile and was sending a mission of engineers and technicians to carry out the project in Egypt.

"THIS NEWS spread like wildfire," reports the newspaper

Dunantuli Naplo. "The 'Egyptian Fever' spread like a disease which broke out with symptoms of hasty planning and whispering propaganda."

"People dashed to their lawyers demanding a divorce because they had heard only unmarried men were being accepted for the Egyptian mission. 'It is almost as difficult as treating an epidemic to handle this problem,' concludes the paper."

Tonnage Recruited

Charleston, W. Va. (AP)—The U. S. Navy recruiting office here has announced plans to enlist a "16 Ton" company from the coal fields of Southern West Virginia, which will receive recruit training as a unit. Recruiting Chief Topsy F. Smith said the group would be sworn in at the state capitol and each man would be given an autographed photograph of "Tennessee Ernie" Ford, who wrote the coal field ballad, "16 Tons."

Rev. Harvey Todd
Receives Citizen
Award at Banquet

Woodstock, Jan. 25.—Highlighting the winter season the annual president's dinner of the Woodstock Square Club was a gala occasion featuring the presentation of the first Outstanding Citizen of Woodstock award to the Rev. Harvey I. Todd Saturday night at Deane's.

The award was presented for the Square Club by Surrogate John B. Sterley of Ulster county and a member of the Square Club. The Rev. Mr. Todd was also presented with a letter of appreciation for his excellent work by the Woodstock Group of Alcoholics Anonymous, along with a photograph signed by the original founder of Alcoholics Anonymous—Bill W.

Honors were also conferred upon a member of the Square Club, Joseph Holdridge who has devoted his Christmas Day and evening for the past several years to being Woodstock's own Santa Claus, distributing gifts and food baskets to the less fortunate and sick in the entire township. The gifts are assembled each year by the Square Club with the help of other organizations in the village.

The award was presented by Leon Carey who spoke in glowing terms of the work done by Mr. Holdridge, who was presented with a life membership in the club. A vote of thanks was also given to Freelan Van De Bogart who has assisted Mr. Holdridge each year in the distribution of Christmas cheer.

The Square Club officers were introduced during the program as follows: Augustus P. Modjeska, who was re-elected to the office of president; Henry C. Page, vice president and acting secretary in place of Edgar Bauman who is away, and Charles Rapp, treasurer.

The guests at the dinner enjoyed a lively and entertaining talk by Frederick Snyder, who spoke on "Keeping Ahead of the Headlines."

Among the prominent guests present were Joseph Avis, newly elected president of the Kingston Shrine Club; Bob Browning, WKNY newscaster, and his guest Harry Edson; Gordon A. Craig, Sr., District Deputy Grand Master of Greene-Ulster District, and his wife; and George Schwartzwalder.

Seated at the speakers table were: the Rev. Harold Pangburn, minister of the Saugerties Reformed Church; Mr. and Mrs. Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Modjeska, Mr. and Mrs. Rapp, Judge Sterley and Mrs. Sterley, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benson, the Rev. Mr. Todd and his mother, Mrs. Todd.

Serving on the committee for the selection of the Outstanding Citizen of the year were: Mr. Carey, chairman; Mr. Benson, William Hand and George J. Braendly.

The president's dinner committee consisted of Mr. Benson, chairman; George Laws, Robert Sperring, William Miller, Justice of the Peace George J. Braendly and Mr. Page.

SOLOMONS OF OHAYO—Hd. Woodstock, Jan. 25.—Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Solomon of Ohayo Mountain, who are spending the winter in Mexico, write that they "survived" the earthquake which created widespread destruction in Acapulco, Mexico several weeks ago. According to a report in "The News" Mexico's English language newspaper, "a new all-time low of minus 13 degrees Centigrade (3.6 degrees above zero Fahrenheit) was registered on January 13 in Mexico City as a record cold spell continued. Rural Mexico has suffered severe freezing weather and heavy agricultural losses."

Met Stage Director
Tells of Experiences

Woodstock, Jan. 25.—Dr. Herbert Graf, who is the frequent guest of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Graf of Old County road, Woodstock, was interviewed Saturday afternoon by Clifton Fadiman between the third and fourth act of "Carmen" at the Metropolitan Opera, New York.

The leading stage director of the Metropolitan, Dr. Graf told of his experiences with the opera both here and abroad. He told the second opera "The Meistersinger" to be presented at the newly reconstructed Vienna Opera House and was enthusiastic in his praise of the facilities it offers for spectacular production. The stage, he reported, is three times as large as the auditorium and is divided into three movable stages, and there are two fine cycloramas which make it possible to arrange handsome lighting effects. He believes that solid scenery will be the accepted form of presentation for the future as "you can't have efficient staging with three dimensional people against two dimensional scenery."

The opening opera at the Vienna Opera House was "Fidelio" and Dr. Graf said that it was telecast. There was not only a large audience inside the theatre, but many thousands listened outside.

"My dream," said Dr. Graf, "is a theater which would meet the demands of television and the theater." He envisions a theater of new and drastically different design with projecting stages without a proscenium. "What we need in the United States today are auditoriums with perfect visibility capable of meeting the demands of both theater and television."

Mrs. Felix Graf is justifiably proud of her nephew who has gained an international reputation as an outstanding opera stage director. "I practically brought him up," she says, "and did you know that his father, who is 82 and his son 22 are both well known in musical circles."

Crespi Exhibition
Set for New York City

Woodstock, Jan. 25.—An exhibition of paintings by Pachita Crespi, Costa Rican painter who is a summer resident of Woodstock, will open at the Gallery of Creative Arts, 232 East 58th street, New York, Monday, Feb. 6. Among the paintings to go on view are "Adam and Eve of Latin America," "Honduras," and many others which represent her observations in five Central American countries. A granddaughter of an earlier president of Costa Rica—the renowned Dr. Jose Maria Castro, she is also a successful writer and illustrator of her own books based on the folk lore of Central America. Astute art collectors are garnering her works and her paintings are in the permanent collections of many museums of art galleries. She is also listed in Who's Who in American Art.

St. Gregory's Church
Holds Annual Meeting

Woodstock, Jan. 25.—The annual meeting of St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, Woodstock, was held Thursday evening at the Dutch Reformed Church, with a large attendance of parishioners, well-wishers and interested newcomers of this area.

Following a buffet supper, the Rev. Herald C. Swezy, vicar, opened the meeting and said: "We of St. Gregory's have just completed our first full year as an organized mission of the church."

"As our treasurer's report will show, we have completed the year comfortably in the black; we have seen our new church building started, and, most important of all, we have enjoyed a very healthy growth in our membership and a constantly increasing number of worshippers at the church services."

Nominating Committee Chairman Houston Richards, presented nine names, all of whom were elected, for the new advisory committee, as follows: Lamont W. Marvin, Mr. Richards, Fennell Frankling, Arthur Jones, Alan F. Styles, Arthur B. London, James D. Hood, Walter Balk and Goodwin Cowles.

The Rev. Mr. Swezy thanked various members of the parish for their special services; Mrs. Margaret Reeve Kenyon for her gifts of stoles and surplices and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Waterous for a handsome silver chalice. Special thanks went to the Rev. Harvey I. Todd for the loan of his church facilities for this meeting.

The treasurer's report for the year just ended was then read and approved, followed by an estimated budget for the coming year, which was adopted.

Architect William H. van Benschoten reported that building operations on the new church are about 30 days behind schedule due to frozen ground preventing the laying of masonry, and thus the occupancy date of Feb. 15, was postponed to March 15. It was further reported that design in color for the church glazing of translucent polyester has been submitted by artist Doris Lee and that artist John Pike is working on the altar design.

The Ladies' Guild, formed in the past year, meets every third Wednesday at 3 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Kenyon, pending church completion, and all women of the parish are invited to attend. Organist Inez Richards and Mrs. Hood are starting choir rehearsals for Easter music, and interested persons are requested to meet at Mrs. Richards' Wednesday evenings at eight.

The Bishop of the Diocese of New York will be at the Church of the Ascension, West Park, for confirmation services, Sunday, March 18, at 11 p. m. St. Gregory's services for Sunday, Jan. 29, will be at 4 p. m.

Peggy Meredith Is
Rehearsing New Play

Woodstock, Jan. 25.—Peggy Meredith, Woodstock actress, who has been playing a leading role in Arthur Miller's "A View from the Bridge" at the Coronet Theater in New York city is also rehearsing in Miller's expanded version of the play which will be tried out at three matinees next week at the same theater. According to a report, admission will be by invitation only. Mr. Miller is said to have added about 20 minutes to the running time of his play about the longshoremen and the Italian immigrants. It will be presented alone, without the long curtain-raiser called "A Memory of Two Mondays."

Peggy Meredith, who is the wife of Victor Winton of Woodstock, is the mother of two children, David 2, and Miriam, two months old. She is expected to return to her home on Rock City road in April, having turned down an offer to go to London with the production. The current version of the play closes on February 4.

When Peggy Meredith entered "A View from the Bridge" several weeks ago, it marked her third appearance in an Arthur Miller play. She has previously been seen in the Critics' Prize-winning "All My Sons," and the Pulitzer Prize-winning "Death of a Salesman." Buffalo-born Miss Meredith has appeared with many of the theater's greatest personalities. She made her Broadway debut in "Embezzler's Heaven" with Ethel Barrymore, played Anna in "Golden Boy," with John Garfield, and was seen in "Truckline Cafe" which introduced Marlon Brando to the Broadway stage. Miss Meredith, who studied at the Neighborhood Playhouse, includes "Peer Gynt" among her credits, and made her most recent Broadway appearance in "The Rose Tattoo."

Six Children Perish

Bridgeport, N. J., Jan. 25 (AP)—Six children were burned to death in a fire that destroyed their home on a rural road three miles outside this southeastern New Jersey community early today. The blaze, believed to have started in a defective oil stove, destroyed the two-story frame home occupied by Austin Pitts and Hazel Pierce, whom police said was his common-law wife. The two adults and the youngest child were on the first floor of the home when the blaze broke out about 1 a. m. Pitts grabbed the child, Andrew Pitts, four months old, and brought him to safety.

Los Angeles, Jan. 25 (AP)—The engineer whose train overturned Sunday killing 29 persons will be given a psychiatric examination today, Dist. Atty. S. Ernest Roll announced last night. Roll said he wanted to get an explanation of Santa Fe Engineer Frank Parrish's statement that he thought he saw an orange grove before the two-car train jumped the rails on a curve inside Los Angeles city limits. There is no such orange grove in the vicinity.

Jury Out 7th Day

Oakland, Calif., Jan. 25 (AP)—With signs pointing strongly to a deadlock, the jury trying Burton Abbott for the kidnap and murder of Stephanie Bryan today begins its seventh day of search for a verdict. Attorneys for Abbott, 27-year-old accounting student, requested last night that Superior Judge Charles Wade Snook ask the jury for a report on its progress. Judge Snook replied merely he would think about it. The state has asked the death penalty, declaring the slaying of Stephanie, 14-year-old Berkeley school girl, was the act of a "sexual psychopath."

Britain Is Facing Similar Position as in Iran in 1951

Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 25 (AP)—Britain's position in Jordan today compares somewhat with her situation in Iran early in 1951.

That was just before Mohammed Mossadegh came to power in Iran on a nationwide surge of anti-British feeling. Mossadegh was out to nationalize the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., and break its hold on Iran's economy.

Jordan's nationalists are out to break British control over their army, the Arab Legion. The Legion is financed by a direct annual British subsidy equivalent to $22,400,000, and is commanded by British-born, Arabic-speaking Lt. Gen. John Bagot Glubb.

NATIONALISTS charge that Glubb controls the country politically through his command of the Legion. They make clear that widespread rioting in December and January was only the beginning of a campaign that will end only when Glubb is out.

Glubb is intensely popular with Bedouin tribesmen from Jordan's deserts, who form the core of the Arab Legion—man for man probably the best fighting force in the Arab world. But he is hated by the Palestine Arabs of town and country, who since 1948 have formed a majority of the country's population. Many of these are refugees who left their homes in Israeli-occupied territory in the 1948 Palestine war.

THEY CONSIDER Glubb the "architect" of Arab defeat, and blame the west, including Britain, for their fate.

The opposition to Glubb brings together strange bedfellows.

Extremists who want to eradicate every trace of British influence from Jordan include the leftist National Front with its segment of Communists, the rightist Moslem Brotherhood, Arab nationalists, and disgruntled refugees who have an anarchist bent.

The two leading parties in the opposition to Glubb are the Arab Resurrection party, largely nationalist youths advocating overall Arab unity, and the National Socialist party, made up of seasoned politicians and respectable business men and professional groups.

THIS BROAD coalition has been formalized in a union known as the National Committee. The smaller extremist parties form the "shock troops" in riots and demonstrations. But the real leaders of the committee are the National Socialists headed by a former ambassador to Britain, Suleiman Nabulsi.

So long as Nabulsi leads the opposition, there is some chance of a compromise. Nabulsi says he has no intention of abrogating the Treaty of 1948, which permits Britain to keep bases in the country and to bring troops in case of war. But he insists Glubb must go and that Jordan's army must be commanded by Jordanians.

NABULSI HAS advocated that Britain pay its subsidy to the Jordan government instead of directly to the Arab Legion command as at present.

"Under such an arrangement, we would have a fine relationship with Britain as equal partners in a mutually advantageous treaty," Nabulsi explains. "But we cannot tolerate this paternalism where our army is really an army of mercenaries commanded by a foreigner."

One result of a long struggle could be victory for extremists, abrogation of the treaty with Britain, and possibly Saudi Arabian-Egyptian money replacing the British subsidy.

AN ALTERNATIVE result would be victory for Glubb and those determined to keep things as they are. This might require rule by force. When moderately pro-western Samir El Rifai formed a new cabinet in the midst of rioting in January, he warned moderate opposition leaders to support him lest his government collapse and "the army take over."

Tillson, Jan. 24—The Local Leaders' Association of the Ulster County 4-H Clubs met Thursday evening at the Tillson School. President Nathaniel Phillips of Tillson presided at the meeting.

School Officials Hear New State Aid Formula

Tillson, Jan. 24—W. K. Wakeley, chairman of the Tillson board of education and George Fernandez, principal of the local school, attended the New York State School Board Association conference at the Hotel Syracuse, Syracuse, on January 19.

The local representatives heard a report on a new state aid formula for all New York State schools, which was followed by a question and answer period. Among the speakers were Dr. A. Burke, director of studies for the New York State Teacher's Association. The proposed changes in the formula which is actually the old formula plus incentives for schools to increase their foundation program, will be presented to the Legislature. Plans call for an increase from $233 to $320 per "weighted" or average pupil. The "local share" of the foundation program was raised in this report from $6.20 per thousand up to $6.80 per thousand in order to be reimbursed, a spokesman said.

Also, salaries of teachers were discussed. In all, the representatives stated that the conference was worthwhile, since a great deal of information was obtained.

Good Taste Today

By EMILY POST

(Author of Etiquette, Children Are People, etc.)

A SPECIAL DIET PROBLEM

Today's first letter tells me: "The other evening my husband and I were invited to a relative's house for dinner. This relative knows that I am on a salt-free diet but in spite of this all the food was brought to the table seasoned. I was handed a plate already prepared with two slices of meat and two vegetables on it and was told that it was prepared specially for me without salt. There were other guests at table and I was made to feel very conspicuous by being served a special plate. Wouldn't it have been better to leave all the food unsalted and let each guest salt his (or her) own food to taste under the circumstances?"

I am sorry to have to tell you that your hostess was correct. After all you must realize that food cooked without salt does not taste its best when the salt is added at the table.

Divorced Parents at Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: My fiancé's parents are divorced and both have remarried. Since the divorce quite a few years ago my fiancé has been living with his mother and stepfather; although he is very close to his father and sees him often. At our wedding, who should stand in the receiving line: His mother and stepfather or should his own father be in the receiving line. What about the stepparents? Where do they stand?

Answer: It will be most correct to have his mother alone receive with your mother. Your mother stands just inside the door and his mother next to her.

A Little Child's Jewelry
Dear Mrs. Post: Our family has had a discussion about jewelry for small children, and we would appreciate your telling us whether or not it is in good taste to put jewelry (rings, bracelets, lockets) on young children.

Answer: A little locket on a simple chain is entirely correct. But any jewelry other than this should be avoided.

Are you planning to give a simple shower for a friend or bride-to-be? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However, leaflet E-13, "Let's

Lt. Michael Epstein Pictured in Life

In the Jan. 23 issue of Life magazine, Lt. Michael Epstein of the USS Grasp based in Hawaii, and grandson of Mrs. Lena Epstein of 85 Hasbrouck avenue, is pictured resting in a very novel way while wearing a 156-pound diving suit.

As stated in Life, "Naval regulations require that whenever a diver is working on the bottom another diver must be ready on deck in case of trouble. Weighed down with a 153-pound suit, the diver on the surface usually finds that he is only comfortable when lying flat on his back. That takes the

Tea, Fashion Show Held by Auxiliary

The Kingston Hospital Auxiliary held its annual tea and fashion show, Tuesday, Jan. 24 at 2 p. m. in the nurses' lounge and the event was very well attended.

The fashion show, given through the courtesy of Weisberg's Specialty Shop created a great deal of favorable comment when model, Mrs. Roy Wulff, showed a basic black dress and proceeded to dress it up and dress it down with numerous accessories to fit any time of the day or evening.

The tea table was very artistically arranged and helped create a warm, friendly atmosphere for the incoming guests.

The reception committee was on hand to greet everyone and it consisted of the Mmes. Frederic Holcomb Sr., Adrian Kaplan, Sherwood Davis and Clyde E. Wonderly Jr.

Co-chairmen Mrs. Joseph Jacobson and Mrs. Peter Corsones were also present.

weight off his feet but throws the sunlight into his eyes."

Lt. Epstein has figured out a hats-off solution to this problem. He simply draws his head, turtle fashion, into the loose-fitting suit. Anyone looking down at him would think his head had rolled off his body but Lt. Epstein finds that this position is not only more comfortable but protects him from the sun. There is only one disadvantage and that is if Lt. Epstein wants to smoke, he has to pop out his head for each puff.

Lt. Epstein is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Epstein of Bellmore, L. I.

Home Extension Service News

According to the annual report of the Home Demonstration Department (formerly known as the Home Bureau) they carried on a program in homemaking education for 1,784 regularly attending, paid members of 67 units and study clubs and for hundreds outside the organization, served through countrywide meetings, exhibits, Ulster County Fair, etc.

Besides bringing women the results of research and providing an opportunity for exchanges of experiences, the organization developed leadership and 662 different volunteer leaders gave 5,391 days to the work. Of the 1,603 meetings held during the year with an attendance of 19,210 the leaders conducted 1,240 with the attendance at 15,554.

The subject matter of the meetings varied greatly. Among the 70 different projects given the most importance from the standpoint of popularity was the food and nutrition and family life. For the second year the food and nutrition project concentrated on Ulster county products—this was deservedly popular for it served both consumers and producers, as did the weekly market report of foods in good supply.

The 21 study clubs pursued courses of their choice, as in the past and based that choice on members' needs. In citizenship, juvenile delinquency and children's courts were studied for a second year.

More than 427 women enrolled to learn how to sew or to develop their sewing skill by making tailored dresses or dresses from the new fabrics and 679 attractive Christmas decorations were made. Families assisted with landscaping numbered 54.

Nearly every unit did something of a community nature; for the second year members put forth concerted effort to visit and become acquainted with some of the older citizens, especially those in boarding and nursing homes and did many kind and gracious things to make them feel wanted and loved.

Various methods were used to secure results. Training schools were held for local leaders and method demonstrations were given by agents and leaders.

STONE RIDGE UNIT will hold a regular meeting at the fire hall Feb. 1 at 7:30 p. m. Following the business meeting a demonstration in good grooming will be given by Mrs. Isaac Graham and Mrs. John Rensing.

Ella Jay Craig Is Engaged to Wed

Mrs. Ora Craig of Cottekill announces the engagement of her daughter, Ella Jay, to Lawrence J. Sokol, son of Mrs. Nettie Sokol and the late Joseph Sokol of New Paltz.

Miss Craig is employed in Stone Ridge and her fiancé recently completed his service with the U. S. Navy.

The wedding will take place June 3.

Barratry Charged

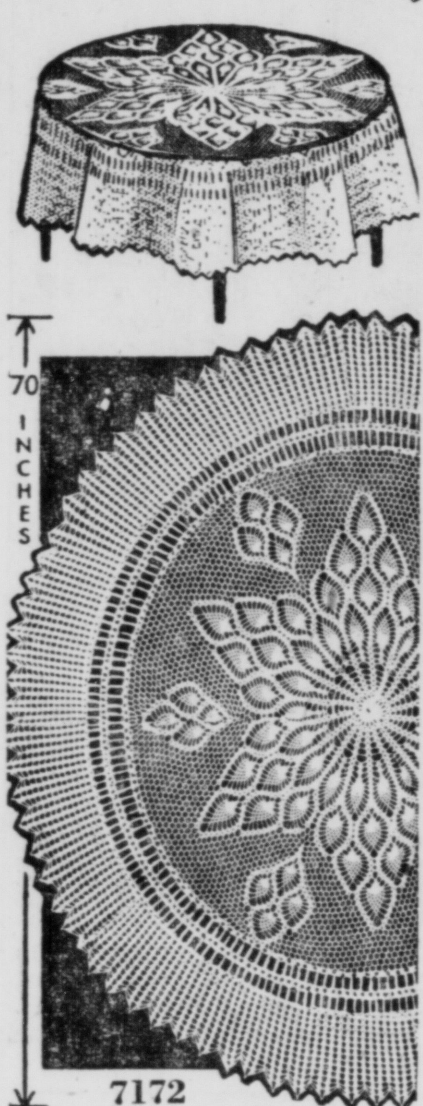

New York (AP)—For the first time in nearly 100 years the charge of barratry—excessive groundless litigation—has been heard in a New York court. A city magistrate ordered the charge drawn up against the head of a tiny church on the fringe of Harlem. The minister has brought 10 suits in city, state and federal courts over the past five years against the son of the church's founder in a dispute over disposal of the church property. Barratry has several meanings. One of the better known ones is the crime of wrecking a ship by its crew.

Scout Directors Hold Board Meeting

At a recent board of directors meeting of the Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts, held at the Governor Clinton Hotel, Mrs. Kenneth Martin, girl scout council advisor, pointed out that the annual report showed a total of 1,619 girl scouts, an increase of 275 girl members over last year's figure of 1,344. Likewise, adult scout membership has taken a sharp incline with 487 registered at the local girl scout office, an increase of 84 over last year's registration of 403.

Mrs. Donovan Buehring, president, welcomed the official family Mrs. Iris Weinstein, newly elected neighborhood chairman of Accord; Mrs. Myron Boice, neighborhood chairman of Marbletown; and Malcolm Sergeant, Girl Scout Camp committee chairman. Mrs. Gorman Schellhammer attended the meeting representing the county staff and office committee.

Mrs. Daniel Van Wagenen, membership-nominating committee chairman announced the following additions to county personnel in scouting: Mrs. Edward Schilder, Ellenville, membership nominating committee member; Mr. and Mrs. George Schneider and Mrs. Edward P. Whaley, of Kingston, camp committee members and Miss Hazel Metcalf, Ellenville, volunteer trainer.

Mrs. Alex Gerlak, of Kingston, has accepted the appointment of county Cookie Sale chairman. Held annually, the sale is scheduled for the week of March 12-17. This season's plan includes a new goal set by the committee of 25,000 boxes to be sold throughout the county. Proceeds are used for the building and improvement fund of Camp Wendy, Council sponsor.

sored camp servicing all Girl Scouts within Ulster county.

Mr. Sergeant gave a brief report of the Girl Scout camp committee meeting held jointly with county 4-H personnel at the Central Hudson Gas and Electric building recently.

Mrs. David Ennis, county program chairman, gave a detailed description of the theme "Americana" selected for emphasis among all county troops throughout the year. This theme, nationwide in scope, is designed to stimulate Girl Scouts to familiarize themselves with the rich traditions and folklore of their own locality through study and research in the areas of legends, songs, dances, costumes and customs of the people. Senior Girl Scouts attending the national senior roundup in Michigan in the early summer will share the knowledge and experiences gained through the Americana project with thousands of girls from every state in the nation. Ulster county is sponsoring three senior Girl Scout representatives to the Roundup.

Plans were also formulated for council-wide activities during Girl Scout Week, March 11-17. Birthday parties will be given under the direction of the neighborhood and program chairmen. Exhibits in stores and local places of interest will feature the Americana theme. An innovation this year will be judging of all exhibits by a council committee with recognition given to outstanding troop displays.

The program committee announced that the annual spring council meeting will take place at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Tuesday, April 10. Members of the steering committee for the annual dinner meeting include the Mmes. Ennis, John Lacey, VanWagenen, Verna Herbert, Morris Kirk, Dean Dykstra, John Olivet and Gene VanWinkle.

Following the business session, the remainder of the evening was spent in a detailed and complete evaluation of the year's council activities in all fields of endeavor to promote and maintain scouting in Ulster county.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON
NO $64,000 QUESTION

There is no $64,000 question. No one is going to get a reward of $64,000. Any time a check for $64,000 is handed out, Uncle Sam gets most of it.

A TV sponsor would have to offer $450,000 before an unmarried winner could keep $64,000 after Spensthrift Sam gets his cut. No sponsor is going to offer $450,000.

Hence there is no $64,000 question. It just seems so, like a mirage in the desert.

The president of duPont told a Congressional committee recently that his "take home," after taxes, was only half what his predecessor got 30 years ago. And this takes no account of the fact that he is paid in 50-cent dollars, while his predecessor got dollars that were as good as gold.

In 50-cent dollars, duPont is paying him only one-quarter as much real "take home" as it paid its president 30 years ago, despite the tremendous growth of the company since then.

Mr. Hutton

He says he and others who have already spent long years with a company will keep on working hard. But he wonders how many young men will drop out of the competition in the world of business because of high taxes.

As the TV program shows, a tax penalty is levied against every one's desire to succeed. The present boom, blown up by rapidly rising debt, and war spending, obscures this fact. It looks like a sound apple, but the rot of excessive taxes is at work. How long before the rot comes to the surface of the apple? That is the real $64 question.

Moore Tells

approved by the Board of Regents.

"IT SHOULD be understood by everyone," Mr. Moore said, "that approval by the voters of the proposed bond issue would not make any money available to meet the capital needs of the university except as specific proposals to meet such needs are advanced by the board of trustees and approved by the Board of Regents, the Legislature and the governor."

Judge Schwartz, chairman of the college council, said that except for the addition of a four-room temporary class room building in 1948 and the new college library in 1953, the New Paltz college is still housed in the building erected in 1907.

HE STRESSED the lack of adequate classrooms, laboratories and other instructional space and pointed to the need for a health and physical education building.

"Present facilities," Judge Schwartz said, "do not permit satisfactory reception and examination of students either for the annual complete physical examinations or for treatment of colds, infections and other temporary ailments."

OTHER CAPITAL needs at New Paltz, he said, include an addition to the too-small auditoriums, additional playing fields and tennis courts, and a new shop maintenance and storage buildings.

"Success of state university's request for 250 million dollar capital construction program would aid tremendously in the long overdue development of the New Paltz State Teachers College," the judge said.

Senator Wicks stressed the teaching of the fundamental three R's and especially emphasized the teaching of children in grammar schools. The senator also paid tribute to Mr. Moore for his outstanding work with the state university.

Dr. William J. Haggerty, president of New Paltz State Teachers College, welcomed the dinner guests. The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Joseph F. Blake, of St. Joseph's Church, New Paltz and the Rev. Gerrett Wulfschlegel, of the New Paltz Reformed Church, gave the benediction.

Donald J. Wickham, a member of the board of trustees, was the toastmaster.

James L. Overbaugh, 18, of Port Ewen, who was arrested Saturday, is due for hearing Feb. 1, and the case of William W. McSpirt, 37, of Hurley, who was arrested Sunday on a speeding charge was put over until tomorrow.

Calls Advertising False

Washington, Jan. 25. (P)—The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) accused Leo O. Johnson, of (210 Baronne street) New Orleans today of falsely advertising that he has a cure for baldness and dandruff. The complaint involved advertisements by the Johnson Hair and Scalp Clinic for a do-it-yourself kit, and clinic treatments. The FTC said Johnson has branches at Detroit, Erie, Pa., and Youngstown and Canton, Ohio.

Service Station Service

Richmond, Va. (P)—Three competitor service station operators helped when Bill Davis was injured in a car accident while driving to the bank. C. P. Schutte made the bank deposit for Davis. Fred Lord took care of the damaged car. Bob Patterson ran Davis' station for him while he was in the hospital.

Rev. Oudemool

bers of his party with Mexican homes, animals, flowers, clothing, foods, legends, beliefs, ways of living, etc. When one crosses the Rio Grande river he enters a completely different world, a bizarre and fascinating culture.

He deplored the fact that so many of the Mexican people, oppressed by the heavy burden of poverty, aged prematurely. He described the heavy loads often carried by Mexican women, the primitive nature of much of the farming, etc. Sometimes the mountain slopes are so steep that the farmer will tie a rope around his waist and the other end to a tree, letting himself down the slope as he works and plants the land, drawing himself back up when he finishes.

THE REV. MR. OUDEMOL and others in his party never "got used to" some of the Mexican foods, such as the tamale which appears to have something "explosive" in it. He described the tortilla, a kind of "corn flapjack," found everywhere. Coffee was thick, strong and difficult to get used to. To consume some of the foods one must have an "asbestos" tongue.

The marketplace is the center of Mexican life, he pointed out, offering the native once a week a change in routine, social contacts, the spirit of a festival. On one occasion Mr. Oudemool, meeting a farmer on the way to market, offered to buy his entire stock, a transaction which would have been most lucrative to the farmer. He refused to sell. The fact was the man would rather spend a day at the market, mingle with his friends and enjoy the pleasures of celebration and the chaffer and barter of the marketplace.

THE AVERAGE Mexican has a serape, a kind of colorful blanket, which he wears about his shoulders. He also wears a light apparel resembling "white pajamas," the utilitarian wide-brimmed sombrero, the native sandals called huaraches (the soles of which are often made out of American automobile tires), the rebosa or head shawl worn by the women who use them for many things including the papoose-like carrying of small children. Approximately 50 or 60 per cent of the population is full Indian.

Mr. Oudemool described the beauty of the University of Mexico, hardly matched architecturally in entire Western Hemisphere, but called attention to difficulty of persuading teachers, once they have studied there, to return to the rural schools where they are most needed.

Beats Zatopek Record

Melbourne, Jan. 25.—Dave Stephens, Australia's bare-footed milkman, ran six miles in 27 minutes, 54 seconds today to eclipse Emil Zatopek's world record by 5.2 seconds. Stephens ran at Olympic Park, which will serve as a training track in the coming Olympic games here in November. He won by more than a quarter mile from Les Perry, a former Australian Olympic runner. Third place went to Geoff Warren, also an Australian.

Hope for Vote Soon

Washington, Jan. 25.—Proponents said today they are hopeful voting will start early next week on a bill to exempt natural gas producers from direct control by the Federal Power Commission (FPC). They voiced this hope as Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) prepared to wind up his Senate speech against the bill—a speech he has been delivering, with some interruptions, since last week. Douglas is sponsoring a substitute bill to exempt from federal regulation producers whose sales of natural gas in interstate commerce aggregate less than 2 billion cubic feet a year. This, he said, still would require the regulation of 197 producing companies selling 89 per cent of all gas marketed across state lines.

Vice President Nixon would be his choice as a running mate again.

In reply, Eisenhower said he never has talked to Nixon about that, and until he has had a chance to do so would prefer not to discuss it.

EISENHOWER WENT on to speak warmly of the vice president, as he has several times in the past.

Nixon, he said, has his admiration, respect and deep affection.

The President said he plans to discuss the political situation with Nixon, and he indicated he would sound out the vice president on Nixon's own plans for the future.

At one point, Eisenhower said there has never been a vice president so well versed in the activities of government as is Nixon.

Also in the political field, the President indicated opposition to the idea of any chief justice of the United States getting into politics to run for President.

THERE HAS BEEN talk among some Republicans of drafting Chief Justice Earl Warren for the nomination if Eisenhower decides against running again.

The subject came up at the news conference in this manner:

A reporter recalled that Warren has said that under no circumstances would he be interested in bidding for the presidency. The reporter then asked whether Eisenhower felt in general that a chief justice should get into politics.

THE PRESIDENT replied that when he won the Republican presidential nomination he immediately retired from the army and later resigned.

We ought not, the President said, let any situation develop where there would be too great confusion between politics and the Supreme Court. Persons in government, he added, have a responsibility to keep each part of the government respected in the eyes of the people.

Eisenhower also said he believes we should guard against getting military and civilian powers tangled up.

Hope for Vote Soon

Washington, Jan. 25.—Proponents said today they are hopeful voting will start early next week on a bill to exempt natural gas producers from direct control by the Federal Power Commission (FPC). They voiced this hope as Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) prepared to wind up his Senate speech against the bill—a speech he has been delivering, with some interruptions, since last week. Douglas is sponsoring a substitute bill to exempt from federal regulation producers whose sales of natural gas in interstate commerce aggregate less than 2 billion cubic feet a year. This, he said, still would require the regulation of 197 producing companies selling 89 per cent of all gas marketed across state lines.

Curbs on Buying Would Split Bank, Business Circles

New York, Jan. 25 (AP)—President Eisenhower's idea that the power to curb American folkways of buying on the cuff would be a good thing for federal money managers to have again is likely to split the business and banking worlds sharply.

Many of the members of the powerful Federal Reserve Board think it should have such stand-by powers to control consumer credit. But at least one president of a regional Federal Reserve bank feels little need for it.

AND SOME industrial leaders protest strongly against the steps the Federal Reserve has taken already to curb credit by making the money supply tight and its hiring cost high. They blame federal credit curbs for the slow-down in home building and see tight and costly credit as threatening to hold down sales of new cars in the month ahead.

President Eisenhower makes it clear in his economic report to Congress that present business conditions don't call for direct consumer credit controls now. But he points to the spectacular rise in consumer credits in 1955—a spree that ignored all attempts to control credit by managing the money supply—as an experience which indicates that the authority to control the terms of time buying "would be a useful adjunct" to the government's existing means of fighting inflation.

OPPOSITION to federal controls over credit comes from two chief sources: 1. The Home building and mortgage lending fraternity, and 2. The finance companies supplying the funds and setting the terms on which the citizens can buy autos, appliances or apparel.

They point out that the prosperity of 1955 was based to a large extent on time-buying of the output of the nation's factories and mortgage lending for home building. They argue that if they couldn't buy on time many, if not most, Americans wouldn't buy the more expensive items at all, since they find it hard to get the cash together all at one time.

As to the record total of consumer debt, now above $3 billion dollars, and the debt of about $6 billion still owed on mortgages, the finance companies and the auto makers argue that it is still in a healthy ratio to the rising national income and that the rate of defaults is very low.

This is apparently what the President refers to in saying that at present the power to curb credit need only be a standby one.

IT WAS THE speed with which private debt was growing last year that frightened many observers. The rate of gain, however, was slowing notably at the end of the year. The cutback in auto sales indicates that the rate is even slower this month.

And many believe that 1956 will be marked more by repayments of old debts than by the acquiring of new ones. At present it is estimated that about 12 per cent of total personal income taxes is going into debt repayments. This limits the amount people can spend in the stores or contract to spend in the future by buying on time.

And those who sell goods on time argue that there's more need right now to increase the volume of disposable income than to make the terms of payment rougher.

The Federal Reserve has had the power to regulate consumer credit on several occasions. The last time was during the Korean War. In the summer of 1952 Congress let this authority lapse.

ALL SUGGESTIONS from the Federal Reserve that it should have the power restored on a standby basis have met with scant attention either on Capitol Hill or at the White House—until the big borrow-to-spend nervous about what would happen to the country if incomes should drop, unemployment spread, and time payments become over-burdensome.

OFFICE CAT

Trade Mark Reg. By Junius

He was a very small boy. Paddy was his dog, and Paddy was nearer to his heart than anything on earth. When Paddy met swift and hideous death on the turnpike road the boy's mother trembled to break the news. But it had to be, and when he came home from school she told him simply: "Paddy has been run over and killed."

He took it very quietly. All day it was the same. But five minutes after he had gone to bed there echoed through the house a shrill and sudden lamentation. His mother rushed upstairs with solicitude and pity.

"Nurse says," he sobbed, "that Paddy has been run over and killed!" "But, dear, I told you that before dinner, and you didn't seem to be troubled at all."

"No; but—but I didn't know you said Paddy; I—I thought you said daddy."

kirk," the Scot replied. "Well, I don't like you running about to strange kirks," said the preacher. "Not that I object to your hearing Mr. MacDougal, but I am sure you wudna like your sheep straying into strange pastures!"

The Scot bristled and replied: "I wudna care a grain, sir, if it was better grass!"

One of the attending comrades at a Communist meeting suddenly stood up during the debate and addressed the chairman.

"Comrade Speaker," he said, "there's just one thing I want to know. What happens to my unemployment compensation checks when we overthrow the government?"

Government doesn't owe anyone a living, and when it seeks to provide such a living, those who toil must pay the bill.

At the conclusion of the school term prizes were distributed. When one of the pupils returned home his mother chanced to be entertaining callers.

"Well, Charlie," asked one of these, "did you win a prize?"

"Not exactly," said Charlie, "but I got a horrible mention."

Which is the right suit to develop first when you are playing the hand at a game in no-trump? Usually your best choice is the longest suit in the combined hands, but this isn't always the case, as today's hand indicates.

West opened the low spade, and dummy won with the ace. It was now up to South to develop one of the three other suits. Which was the correct choice?

If South begins with the diamonds, the longest suit, East will take the ace of diamonds and lead a spade through the king-jack. This permits West to develop his suit before South can establish nine tricks. South can get two spades, one heart, one club, and four diamonds for a total of eight tricks. The defenders take the rest.

Actually, South must begin with the shortest suit in the combined hands—clubs! At the second trick he leads the queen of clubs for a finesse, losing to West's king. Even though the finesse loses, there is no harm in letting West gain the lead. A spade continuation would give South a free finesse, and any other continuation would merely help declarer.

If West returns a heart, as good a defense as any, South captures an honor with the ace of hearts and knocks out the ace of diamonds.

Now the spade lead comes through South, but it is too late. South is in position to take two spades, one heart, four diamonds and two clubs, for a total of nine tricks.

Gilligan Calls

Defense 'Improved'

By CHUCK NORD
(Freeman Sports Staff)

Three words are sufficient to describe the performance of Kingston High School's basketball team to date:

A pleasant surprise.
The above statement may not apply outside of the Kingston area. But to the local followers, the 1955-56 Maroons have been a delight.

Kingston coach Jack Gilligan, who will be 32 years old Friday, inherited little in the way of experienced talent when he took over the job from G. Warren Kias.

PLENTIFUL HEIGHT was the Maroons' sole asset. But the labors of coach and players have brought forth a balanced team which is, despite two losses, a contender for the DUSO League basketball pennant. The locals are tied for third with Newburgh.

The KHS basketball team has completed the first half of their schedule with a record of seven victories and two defeats. They won the first four over Hudson, Liberty, Monticello and Catskill. Port Jervis and Poughkeepsie administered the losses. Since then the Maroons have whipped Newburgh, Middletown and Ellenville.

In what phase of the game has the team improved the most? Gilligan was asked.

"OUR DEFENSE gets better all the time," Jack answered. The Kingstonians were formerly slow in getting downcourt to set up their zone formations.

"And we're getting our three offensive patterns working better," Gilligan added.

Where is the most work needed?

"On our offensive out-of-bounds plays," Gilligan declared.

The KHS crew has played every DUSO team except Fallsburgh. Of the individual players, Gilligan rates Port Jervis' Alex Oswick, a sophomore center, as the top offensive man. Charley Johnson, Poughkeepsie's guard, who has used up his eligibility, was picked as the best defender.

The Kingston team has been conspicuous for its lack of an outstanding scoring star.

INSTEAD, the Maroons have operated with a system that allows first one, then another player to do the pointmaking. In the nine games played, no Kingston starter has scored in double figures less than three times.

Therein may lie a key to the KINGSTON COMBINATION—Pictured above are the players and coach who have led Kingston High School to a 7-2 midseason record. team's success to date; the attack isn't dependent on any single player, so an opponent cannot, therefore, key its defense to stopping one star.

Forward Tom Flemming and guard Bob Smith have each netted 124 points, an average of 13.8 per game. Center Richie Strong has rimmed 102 for an 11.3 mark. Forward Tony Grimaldi has 83 for 10.4 and guard Al Long 49 for 6.1. Grimaldi and Long have played in only eight games, however.

STRONG and Grimaldi have been the best rebounders. Strong the 6-6 center, has grabbed 177 off the boards and Grimaldi, who stands 6-2, has 130 to his credit. And the other three are not too far behind.

Strong is the most improved player on the team, if not in the entire league. His scoring hasn't been what it should be for a youth so tall, but he sets up a number of baskets with his tricky ball-handling. Often he passes up shots to "feed" a teammate.

Defense is Richie's forte. He has knocked down more shots than Kingston's opponents care to remember. He really blocks up the keyhole area with his elongated reach.

SMITH has also shown much improvement, especially his disposition. He's one of the league's best backcourt men.

Grimaldi and Smith are juniors, the others seniors. Grimaldi, a jumping-jack, should really hit his stride next winter. Right now he's acquiring the polish.

Flemming is the only returnee from the 1954-55 team. He lacks speed afoot but is proficient as a scorer, passer, rebounder and defender.

Long is the plugger for the starting five. Not too gifted naturally, he's a hard worker. "He's the type a coach likes to work with," declares Gilligan.

OF THE RESERVES, the most outstanding has been five-foot, three-inch Melvin Williams. Jim "Junior" Jackson has also come up with some fine performances.

The second half of the slate promises to be just as tough as the first. Kingston can't afford to lose a single league game.

But whether or not the locals take home the first DUSO pennant since 1949, they'll still have to be rated the most surprising Kingston team in many a season.

Saratoga Track Plans 100 Events In Summer Meet

Saratoga Springs, Jan. 25

(AP)—Saratoga Raceway plans 100 events for its June 7-Aug. 25 harness racing meet this summer.

Ninety-six events were announced today by Racing Secretary Harold Haswell.

The other four, previously announced, are part of a series of eight $20,000 Empire State racing classics to be co-sponsored with Vernon Downs.

THE 96 EVENTS, carrying a minimum value of $199,600 and the four classics, will give the raceway a program worth $279,600, Haswell said.

Richest of the 96 events will be the $10,000 three-year-old trot, the $10,000 two-year-old trot, the $5,000 two-year-old pace and the $5,000 two-year-old pace. Haswell said these events are carded again for Grand Circuit week, July 16-21.

Two $10,000 free-for-alls, customary during Grand Circuit week, have been dropped. One of the racing classics has been scheduled for that week, he said.

Giambra Meets Andrews Tonight

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 25 (AP)

Joey Giambra's hopes for a quick shot at the world middleweight championship rest on the outcome of his battle with confident Al Andrews tonight in the Norfolk Arena.

Giambra and Andrews, both 24, square off at 10 p. m. (EST) in a nationally televised 10-rounder.

"This is an important fight for me," said Giambra, the challenger from Buffalo, N. Y. "In fact, it will be my first fight since last Aug. 26 when I fought Bobo Olson."

Giambra lost the over-the-weight match with Olson by one point.

Conley's Arm Reported Better

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 25 (AP)

The Milwaukee Braves will be glad to know that the muscular trouble which hampered Gene Conley's pitching arm in the stretch drive last season has all but cleared up.

Dr. M. D. Cramer, Des Moines osteopath who has been treating Conley's damaged shoulder since August, said yesterday the inflammation in the throwing muscles has "cleared up 95 per cent."

"Of course the real test won't come until he starts throwing again," said Cramer, who was trainer at Drake University for more than 20 years.

Promoter Jack Kramer is temporarily missing from the Pancho Gonzales-Tony Trabert professional tour which arrives in Kingston Sunday evening.

Mrs. Kramer is presenting the former U. S. and Wimbledon champion with their fifth child in the next few days. Jack is hoping for a girl. The other four are boys.

Mr. Kramer's other baby—the World's Championship Tennis Tour—is also doing well, exactly 40 per cent better at the boxoffice than a year ago, according to the troupe's advance man, John Gardner, who visited the sports department this week.

"Attendance and interest is up everywhere," said Gardner. "Gonzales at 27 is at the peak of his game, absolutely the world's greatest tennis player. He puts on a spectacular show and Tony Trabert has pulled his weight."

As of Sunday night, Pancho, who has won every major title in amateur and professional tennis, was leading Trabert, 16 to 7. Gonzales has been king of the professional roost for three years and is not disposed to relinquish his laurels.

"Gonzales and Trabert are leveling and this is no wrestling promotion," Gardner pointed out. "There is $25,000 at stake for the 100-match U. S. Continental tour and the winner gets the No. 1 contract next year. The Kingston fans will see professional tennis at its absolute best."

The continental U. S. tour ends on May 30 at Pebble Beach, Cal., but Kramer is looking ahead to a six-weeks tour of Europe, Australia, U. S. Army camps, Japan, the Philippines, South Africa and, maybe, Russia. The big plumb for the world tour will be Frank Sedgman, the former Australian great.

What if Kramer is unable to lure Lew Hoad, the Australian who is admittedly the world's finest amateur, into the fold next season?

"Kramer may try a comeback," said Gardner. "He's always in top shape and has been playing hard this year . . . just in case."

Gardner pointed out that tremendous pressure from his family, sponsors and perhaps the government was exerted on Hoad this year to prevent him from joining the cash and carry guys.

"We had his signed contract in Los Angeles, but couldn't do a thing about it. We're hoping for 1957 but not too sure at the present time."

The advance man was inclined to view the United States' 1956 Davis Cup hopes with something less than enthusiasm.

"They may have to drag Vic Seixas back into the fold . . . that's how bad things are," he went on. "The Australians already have a lad they're tabbing as successor to Hoad and Rosewall, a young man named Melvin Cooper. Best looking prospect I've seen in my travels is a Pacific Coast youngster named Earl Baumgardner. He has Kramer's style and build and could be the No. 1 man of the future."

Kingston hasn't seen world championship professional tennis since the early 1930, he was told.

"If your fans remember that this is one of the world's greatest sports shows, I think we'll do alright. It's the same as bringing to town, let's say, the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Cleveland Browns or Rocky Marciano. You can't ask for much more."

Winter Olympics Begin Tomorrow; Snow Lacking

Cortina D'Ampezzo, Italy, Jan. 25 (AP)—The plushiest winter Olympics yet opens tomorrow in the shadow of an injury jinx and a surprising threat from a Russian powerhouse.

There's also a disturbing lack of snow.

The colorful opening day spectacle, set for the 24-million-dollar ice rink stadium, gets under way shortly before noon here in the Italian Alps—while most folks are sleeping away the early morning hours in the United States.

Eight gold medal winners from the 1952 games at Oslo will be among the 1,100 athletes who will represent 32 countries—from Asia and America, from Communist and non-Communist lands—in the opening parade.

THE RETURNING champions include Mrs. Andrea Mead Lawrence of Marshall, Colo., a double winner on skis, and Norway's Hjalmar Andersen, a triple winner on speed skates.

Shortly after the parade, the rink will be cleared and the first actual competition begins with Austria meeting Italy and Canada playing Germany in ice hockey.

Some of the youngsters who made their way to Cortina won't be in the opening parade, however. They're among the 30 who have suffered practice injuries. Five were added to the casualty list yesterday, including Serge Giacchini of France, whose two-man bobsled shot off the icy, mile-long course at a mile-a-minute clip for the second time in a week.

SEVEN OF THE injured definitely will miss the competition, including Katy Rodolph of Reno, Nev., who fractured a neck vertebra in a ski spill.

Most of the casualties are skiers and most of the accidents have been caused by the lack of snow. There hasn't been a snowfall in two weeks and the light covering scattered over the ski runs each night hasn't kept the slopes from becoming too icy—and dangerous.

Eight night-huddled groups discuss team and individual prospects, and 24 hours before the games open, the outlook was like this:

The Russians, entering their first winter games, will clean up in speed skating and will do well in cross-country skiing. They'll also challenge in hockey.

NORWAY, entering the seventh winter Olympics with one of its strongest teams, probably will squeak out a team victory in the unofficial point standings. The United States, with Mrs. Lawrence below par, will be content to win two gold medals—in the women's figure skating with Tenley Albright of Newton Center, Mass., despite her gashed leg, and in the men's figure event with Haynes Alan Jenkins of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Italy will take the two-man and four-man bobs, unless the U. S. team—or possibly the Germans or Swiss—can crowd in. Canada will win the hockey, pressed by Russia, Czechoslovakia and—as a long shot—the United States.

Yonkers Awaits State's OK For Track Improvements

New York, Jan. 25 (AP)—Officials of Yonkers Raceway were ready today to begin preliminary work on improvements at the harness racing track which, when completed, would cost up to 14½ million dollars.

Work on a new clubhouse and enlarged grandstand and increased parking facilities depends on a bill before the Legislature at Albany to help finance capital improvements at Yonkers and other New York state racing tracks.

"Yonkers Raceway has the largest average nightly attendance and betting of any trotting track in the world," said Lewis Burton, vice president and general manager. He said, however, that the track's capacity to handle large crowds has been reached.

BURTON and Alfred A. Tanbaum, executive committee chairman, outlined the plans at a press conference.

First, they stressed, parking facilities would be enlarged for 2,300 more automobiles. The track lost five acres when the New York State Thruway was constructed past the raceway.

Burton said Yonkers purchased 198 acres at Orangeburg, across the Hudson river in Rockland county. If the Legislature approves the harness track bill, the Yonkers stable area will be closed and new barns and a training track would be built at once in Orangeburg. This is about 23 miles up the Thruway from Yonkers. The present barn area would be used for parking, increasing the parking capacity to 8,200 cars.

YONKERS, which has turned away customers when the crowd reaches around 30,000, would be able to handle from 40,000 to 50,000 depending upon which plan is adopted.

A record $25,476,094 was collected in revenue by the state last year from trotting tracks. Roosevelt Raceway on Long Island said several weeks ago it is prepared to spend 12 million dollars on a new track as soon as the bill is approved at Albany. Roosevelt will operate this year from April 1-Aug. 23, and Yonkers from Aug. 24-Nov. 15.

OBSCURED TALENTS

Many Cagers Excel in Other Sports, So What's With the 'Goon' Label?

BY MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEA Staff Correspondent

New York—(NEA)—Basketball players are not freaks.

There's a sizeable segment of our sports populace that looks with derision on the over-sized gent who gangle up and down slatted floors and airily dismisses them as non-athletic goons. Yet these same characters rhapsodize over assorted figures who cluck over a little pellet and try to stroke it into a hole.

Well, they ought to see George Mikan, all 6-11 of him, unlimber his massiveness into the stroke of a golf ball. He'll outdrive most of the pros.

George's sidekick, 6-10 Clyde Lovellette, doesn't look like a Ballet Russe type with his hay-shaking shamble, but around Terre Haute, Ind., they say there never was a smoother operator around first base.

MORE THAN ONE of the transom-tailored lopers in the National Basketball Association could have made it in baseball. Dick Ricketts of the Rochester Royals doesn't know yet whether to be a pitcher of basketballs or baseballs.

High-scoring Neil Johnston of the Philadelphia Warriors shifted to the hardwood only after his pitching arm went dead.

The New York football Giants still are after Ed Kalafat of the Minneapolis Lakers, an end great in Montana high school circles. The Lakers' Dick Schmittner was a starting Rose Bowl end for Ohio State. Junior Stephens of the St. Louis Hawks put in a season of football at Notre Dame.

Tom Gola of the Warriors was the Pennsylvania prep quarter-mile champ, swung a heavy stick as first baseman and tried his hand on the gridiron.

JACK GEORGE went to Notre Dame as a T quarterback and served an apprenticeship in the Philadelphia Athletics' system as a catcher. Carl Braun of the New York Knicks was a minor league pitcher who's been thinking of becoming a golf pro.

Walt Davis of the Warriors is the same leaper who won the 1952 Olympic Games high jump. Bob Pettit of the Hawks won his letter at Louisiana State in track.

Dick Groat made up his mind to play shortstop for the Pirates after a basketball whirl with Fort Wayne. Bill Sharman found flipping one-handers for the Boston Celtics more lucrative than struggling through the Dodgers' chain.

Let Otto Graham tell you how football never gave him the kicks he got as an All-America and All-Pro in basketball.

Scoring High

Lawrence, Kans.—(NEA)—Guard Maurice King of the Kansas basketball team climbed to personal scoring highs in three successive games.

Sullivan Now Sole Helfand Opponent

New York, Jan. 25 (AP)—Tex Sullivan, co-promoter of the St. Nicholas Arena fights, stood alone before New York State Athletic Commissioner Julius Helfand today as the latter delved further into the methods used to obtain fighters for the club shows.

Sullivan's partner in the venture—the formal name is the London Sporting Club—Willie Gilzenberg, resigned yesterday, surrendering his license as corporation secretary and selling his interest in the club to Sullivan.

Helfand, however, refused to accept the resignation, pending an inquiry into the circumstances surrounding it.

Meanwhile, he tied in fight managers Charley Johnston, Bill Daly and Jack Kearns with the TV promotions. He drew from Robert Dreyer, general counsel for the Dumont network which carries the Monday night fights, the admission that he also dealt with the three managers in arranging the St. Nick's contract. This Daly promptly denied.

"IT'S NOT TRUE," he said. Gilzenberg said later in Newark, N. J., that Johnston, Daly and Kearns talked to the Dumont officials, but he explained it this way:

"They had nothing to do with the money or the length of the contract which was two years as it finally was set up. When Eastern Parkway Arena threw Dumont out from its televised shows and instead signed with the American Broadcasting Company, we sought the Dumont contract."

"Dumont thought we could not get the name fighters. We had to convince them because we were going to run the same night as Eastern Parkway—Mondays. So we got Johnston, Daly and Kearns, top men of the International Boxing Guild (the fight managers' organization), to assure Dumont that we could. That was their only purpose at the meeting between us and Dumont."

DURING YESTERDAY'S questioning, Helfand did not attempt to bring out how the three managers were involved in the negotiations.

He also drew fire from former New York police commissioner Francis Adams, who has been representing Gilzenberg and Sullivan. Adams questioned Helfand's legal right to refuse to accept Gilzenberg's resignation.

Gilzenberg issued a statement from Newark, N. J., in which he said he resigned because he had "no heart for the ramifications and heartaches which the recent hysteria in boxing have promoted."

In the original specifications, Gilzenberg and Sullivan faced eight charges, including one of associating with "persons convicted of crime, bookmakers, gamblers and persons of similar pursuit."

HELFAID ADDED a new charge of entering into a "conspiracy with persons unknown" by withdrawing a sum of $66,787.50 from a New York bank and depositing it to the account of a corporation known as Sports Promotions, Inc., in a Paterson, N. J. bank.

He claimed the new corporation, in which Gilzenberg and Sullivan were equal stockholders, was formed to "thwart and frustrate" the commission from serving process in New Jersey where it had no legal standing.

The two promoters also were accused of opening the account as an attempt to "pay part of these monies over to persons not licensees of this (New York) commission."

Experience that money can't buy!

A man doesn't advance very far or very fast from experience alone . . . that experience must be coupled with professional development and recognition by superiors . . . and a man who is only "holding his own" while others are advancing is actually losing ground.

Professional development is dependent upon many factors:

- Association with recognized technical leaders.
- Recognition of individual contribution through merit review, publication of technical papers and technical society membership.
- Participation in management decisions and planning.
- The availability of a continuing formal educational program.
- The guidance of a young, technically trained management.
- A flexibility of operation where you can plan your use of time.
- A major responsibility rather than a minor detailed job.

At Univac, you will learn and grow with the men who evolved much of the basic knowledge of computers . . . who designed and produced components being used by other manufacturers in the field . . . who set the standards that the others follow . . . THIS is the opportunity and the experience that money can't buy. All of these positions offer a unique opportunity for advancement because of Univac's expansion . . . our present facilities are running to capacity . . . new plants and laboratories are under construction.

NOW is the time to come to Remington Rand Univac where ambition and professional skill find their reward . . . advancement comes quickest in an expanding organization.

Democrats Jubilant Over First Victory

Pittsburgh, Jan. 25 (AP)—Jubilant Democrats saw a bright omen in their smashing 3-1 victory margin yesterday in the year's first congressional election. But Republicans termed the victory of Representative-elect Elmer J. Holland over Republican David J. Smith a personal triumph and a victory by default.

Holland, elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Rep. Vera Buchanan (D-Pa.), said the special election result "points out very clearly that the Democratic party is on the march back to the presidency." And Joseph M. Barr, Democratic state chairman, said in a statement: "The great victory of Representative-elect Holland, a staunch supporter of Adlai Stevenson, is a significant indication of Pennsylvania's preeminence in an important presidential election year."

Smith, of nearby McKeesport, commented after the votes were counted that "Republican leaders refused to enter this contest." "The vote is the result of their fear or timidity."

North Florida Chilled Again

(By The Associated Press)

A fresh batch of cold air move into the southeast today as far south as northern Florida. The chilly weather followed the season's worst snow storm in some areas.

Temperatures dropped into the 40s in northern Florida and to the low 60s in the southeastern section. However, Key West reported a mild 71 compared to 61 at Miami.

READINGS in the region generally were around 5 to 10 degrees lower than 24 hours earlier. The snow storm earlier this week swept over areas from Arkansas to Virginia, with falls ranging up to a foot in parts of Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia.

Today's new snow extended in a belt from the eastern plains into Minnesota and southward into Iowa, Missouri and southern Illinois. Falls in most places were light, under one inch. South of the snow belt in the lower Mississippi valley skies were cloudy, with some drizzle and fog.

Light snow also fell in the lower Great Lakes region and near Lake Michigan.

Commission Pays Back

New York, Jan. 25 (AP)—The Waterfront Commission of New York harbor reports it is now self-sustaining and has paid back the $900,000 it received from the Legislatures of New York and New Jersey for its establishment and initial operations. Final payments of $150,000 to the State of New York and $75,000 to New Jersey were announced by the commission yesterday.

The original debt, which started more than two years ago when the two states set up the agency to supervise waterfront labor and fight crime and rackets on the docks, was $600,000 to New York and $300,000 to New Jersey.

SARANAC LAKE, Jan. 25 (AP)—Unlike the womenfolk, the men who put on a benefit baked goods sale last November forgot to attach their names to their pie and cake plates.

Wives who have wondered what happened to their favorite plates now can find them. They're displayed in a downtown store, awaiting identification.

SCHENECTADY, Jan. 25 (AP)—Mayor Samuel S. Stratton is concerned about the comfort of citizens who turn out for council meetings. He suggests going right to the seat of complaints.

In a letter to City Manager Arthur Blessing, Stratton suggested cushioning those hard, wooden seats.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 25 (AP)—A game protector reports that deer which fall through thin ice on Oneida Lake are being torn to death by dogs.

Harry Best says 18 deer have been killed in the last 10 days. He explained that the ice held the dogs but that the sharp hooves of the deer plunged through, leaving them trapped.

He urged area residents to keep their dogs indoors until the lake freezes enough to hold the deer.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP)—The Power Commission has been asked by Iroquois Gas Corp., Buffalo, N. Y., for authority to develop a new underground storage area for natural gas in Chautauque, Cattaraugus and Erie counties, N. Y.

The cost of the project, including pipeline facilities, has been estimated at $2,877,200.

Additional storage area is needed. Iroquois said yesterday because demand for gas for space heating is continuing at an unprecedented rate in its western New York state market area.

CORNWALL, ONT., Jan. 25 (AP)—A petition listing a scale of land values is being circulated among area farmers whose property is in the path of the St. Lawrence seaway power project.

Wilfred Raymond, who farms on nearby Sheek Island, said yesterday the farmers had drawn up a scale for bargaining with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. The petition, Raymond said, will be forwarded later to Ontario Premier Leslie Frost.

Land values listed are: Slash and woodland $50 an acre, plus the value of fuel—or timber—growing on the land; pasture land $50-$150 an acre, unplowed land smooth and free of trees $100 an acre; tillable land $150 an acre.

Little Relief Noted

New York, Jan. 25 (AP)—The cutback in automobile production has brought little or no relief to the steel shortage. The Iron Age, national metalworking weekly, said today. Steel consumers still find it difficult to get enough steel to meet their production schedules, the weekly said. It reported as follows: No relief will be forthcoming for several months, if then. The news of auto production cutbacks brought to the surface the underlying truth about the steel market—that it is based on demand from virtually all industries.

Youth Stabbed to Death

Chicago, Jan. 25 (AP)—A 19-year-old youth was stabbed to death last night in the city's second apparently unprovoked teen-age gang violence in three days. Witnesses told police that the victim, William J. McNeff, and a companion were attacked by a gang of four boys after they stepped from a car on the southwest side. One pulled a switchblade knife and stabbed McNeff in the heart. The gang broke up and fled on foot.

Gideon Rally Is Regarded Success

The annual winter cabinet meeting of the New York State officers and members of the Gideons International was held last week at St. James Methodist Church.

On Sunday, Jan. 22, men of the Gideons spoke in 36 churches in Kingston, Saugerties and nearby towns. They reported that reception given them by the various pastors and members was encouraging.

MEMBERS of the local Gideon camp reported that contributions received far exceeded their expectations, making it possible to distribute a greater number of the Bibles and testaments in the Hudson Valley area.

Last Saturday night the annual banquet was held at St. James and reports were issued on the work accomplished throughout the state. It was reported that more than 3,000 copies of the Holy Scriptures were distributed in the state during the last three months of 1955.

DURING the weekend convention here it was announced that every dollar contributed to the Gideons by people interested in their work goes 100 per cent toward the purchase of the scriptures and that nothing is taken out for administration expenses.

"Any hotel, motel, school or other institutions desiring Bibles or testaments may secure them by writing Arthur A. Hansen, 37 Warren street," a spokesman for the organization said. He added that no charge is made for these scriptures but that none are available for sale to the general public.

Five Gangland

the missing Carlson, one of O'Keefe's closest friends.

Police say they believe the gunman was Elmer "Trigger" Burke, now under the death sentence in New York for the slaying of a barroom companion, Edward (Poochy) Walsh.

George O'Brien was found dead of self-inflicted bullet wounds less than 10 hours after the attempt on O'Keefe's life.

POLICE SAID that before Parella disappeared six attempts were made on his life. Eight men are in custody in six separate lockups on the Brink's robbery charges.

When first arrested six men were put in the Charles street jail, Boston, but Anthony Pino, 48, was moved to Worcester county jail Monday.

FIFTEEN HOURS later, Joseph McGinnis, 52, named by the FBI as the "mastermind" of the Brink's job, was moved to Plymouth county jail, Adams, Massachusetts, where he was transferred to Barnstable county jail.

That left in the Charles street jail Henry D. Baker, Vincent Costa and Michael Geagan. O'Keefe, who never was put under the same jail roof with the others because he turned informer, is in East Cambridge jail.

Stanley Gusciora is in Pennsylvania prison on another charge.

TWO OTHERS indicted for the robbery—James I. Faherty and Thomas Richardson—are still at large.

The 11th man named as a Brink's robber is dead.

Jail authorities said that before they were removed to different jails pending trial, McGinnis and Pino repeatedly threw jail into disorder by shouting vile names at each other from their separate cells.

Gets Back $10,000 Ring

New York, Jan. 25 (AP)—Mrs. Margery Newton has got back the diamond ring which she valued at $10,000 and had lost down a drain at her mother's east side apartment. City sewer workers searched vainly for the ring in pipes leading from the building yesterday. One of the men told Mrs. Newton that a screen in the building's plumbing system probably had trapped the ring and suggested that she get a private plumber to check. When the plumber later found the ring, just as the sewer worker had predicted, Mrs. Newton delightedly gave full credit to "the simply marvelous department of sewers."
